IF CHILD IS CROSS
WON'T EATTake Doctor's Advice
Results Will Surprise You

If your precious child won't eat without coaxing, is nervous and underweight... do what doctors the world over advise: Give him a little Castoria and you will see a marked improvement the first day.

Authorities have found intestinal absorption of poisons to be the cause of most child ailments. Even when the child's habits may seem regular, poisons seep through the system and do damage. The stomach is upset. Food does not digest properly. The nervous system is delicate and unbalanced.

Nothing can correct this insidious condition quite as easily and naturally as Castoria. It tastes so good children beg for it. And it swiftly purges the little system of poisons. It settles the stomach, improves digestion and restores nerve-poise. Then Nature does the rest as only Nature can. Appetite for food quickly returns. Health is restored to normal. And as a result, the child gains weight fast and becomes sturdy and strong.

Now take care of your child this safe, drugless way. Get a bottle of Castoria and try it. Results will delight you.

FILMLAND NEWSVigorous Reply to Boycott Threat*WRONG CAMPAIGN

Mr. Adrian Brunel, the well-known film director, has made the following statement:—

"The Very Rev. Canon Palmer calls upon churchgoers to boycott the cinema until films are so bowdlerised that they will cease to attract to their present extent."

"I would hesitate to say that he wishes to bring the cinema down to the same level of popular appeal as that of so many churches to-day, because that would be rude and unkind, and being a Christian I do try not to be rude and unkind. Of course, if I were 'very reverend' I might feel differently; I might then join Canon Palmer's movement or even Herr Hitler's. If I were only just 'fairly reverend' I might suggest retaliation; I might suggest that cinema-goers boycott the churches until their teachings were more in accord with their Founder's. But only being an ordinary person, I suggest that Canon Palmer could employ his undoubted energy in a more Christian manner by campaigning against aiums, armaments, aggressive nationalism, and the persecution of minorities; he might also do good work in distributing copies of the Sermon on the Mount to people in coloured shirts."

"CLEAN FILM No. 1"

"The World Moves On," has won the unique distinction of being awarded No. 1 "clean picture" certificate issued by Joseph I. Breen, of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

Breen, assistant to Will Hays, was recently appointed as the sole arbiter of the film industry on the question of clean pictures.

COLIN CLIVE SIGNED.

Colin Clive, a British star lost to England for some time, has been signed to a term contract at Warners' and the studio is now hunting for stories for him. At the moment he is co-starring with Virginia Bruce in "Jane Eyre."

Clive first became internationally famous for his portrayal of Captain Stanhope in "Journey's End." Universal then engaged him for the name part in "Frankenstein."

Warners became impressed with him when he was engaged for the male lead in "The Key," a picture of the Irish rebellion.

FILM DEBUT.

Robert Lorraine, the distinguished British actor, is to make his Hollywood debut in the Fox production "Marie Galante." It is the story of a French waltz who drifts to the Panama Canal zone, becomes involved in the international espionage system and is killed.

Ketti Gallian, the French actress, will play the title role, with Spencer Tracy opposite her. Robert Lorraine's role is comparatively small, but he was anxious to gain film experience before carrying out his long-cherished plan to bring to the screen Rostand's tragic-comical romance, "Cyrano de Bergerac."

BUSTER KEATON FILM.

Arrangements have just been concluded for Buster Keaton to star in a British film which, it is understood, will be made at Wembley. Keaton has just completed a picture in France.

Production at Wembley will start almost immediately with Diana

FRUIT AND WALNUT BREAD

TAKE one lb. flour, ½ lb. currants, ½ lb. sultanas, four oz. shelled walnuts, six oz. sugar, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, two eggs, ½ pint milk.

Mix flour, currants, sultanas, walnuts, sugar, and baking powder very thoroughly. Beat eggs and milk together, and add to mixture, stirring till dough becomes soft. Grease two loaf tins and put half the dough in each, bake for one hour in a hot oven. If only one loaf is required halve all the ingredients.

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.

R. C. Sheriff, the British author and playwright, who recently sailed for Universal City on a long-term contract, has been assigned to do the screen plays of the two Dickens productions shortly to go before the cameras at the Universal studios—"Great Expectations" and "The Mystery of Edwin Drood."

The second of these two assignments sets him a hard task. Dickens did not finish writing "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" before he died, so R. C. Sheriff has not only to adapt that part of the book which was written by Dickens, but to provide an ending that will be acceptable to the millions of Dickensians all over the world—and to the general public, who may also have their own ideas on the matter. The task is complicated by the fact that Dickens left the book in a very incomplete state, with no indication as to how he intended the mystery to be solved. In fact, it was thought by his friends at the

PEKINESE NO TOY DOGREALLY SPORTING ANIMAL

The "Pekie" is nowadays by far the most popular of the "toy" breeds, and the Kennel Club statistics show that the number of Pekies registered at the Club during the past year far exceeds the total of all the ten other "toy" breeds put together.

That this is so is not due merely to the fact that the little dog from China is highly ornamental. One always feels that the term "toy" applied to so many varieties of valiant little dogs does them less than justice. Many of the "toy" breeds are highly useful members of canine society, and especially is this the case with the Pekinese.

He is as good a burglar alarm as a dog twice his size. Many of his kind are as keen and efficient as any terrier at a little job of minding, and one of his earliest admirers, Lord John Hay (who was present at the signing of the Summer Palace in Peking in 1860, and brought some of the first specimens to England) testified to the sporting proclivities of some of his Pekies 40 years ago, when he said that they showed "a good average capacity at the drag-hunt."

He is remarkably adept at hurdling, too, and anyone who has seen a slow-motion film of a Pekinese taking a hurdle will agree that for sheer beauty of movement this little dog is unsurpassed by any other breed. And to show that he can be just as much of a rascal as any of his bigger brethren, there are whisperings of raided hen-roosts and plantations.

Many a Pekinese will foot it with the best of human pedestrians on a fifteen mile walk. A great point in their favour is that they are perhaps the longest lived of all breeds. It is not unusual to find a Pekie "full of beans" at twenty—and this is equivalent to a hundred and forty years in a human being.

REFLECTION BY MIRRORSNEW SYSTEM OF FILM PROJECTION

The little news theatre opened by British News Theatre, Limited, at Waterloo Station is using a system of film projection which is new to this country.

The new building, although high, has a small floor area with seats for just over 250 persons. The usual method of film presentation could not be adopted, because the image could not be thrown directly on to the screen. The principle of the Innes Projection System, which has been installed, embodies the reflection of the image from a screen—which is not visible to people in the auditorium—on to a large mirror. The "false" distance gained by this method makes it possible to bring the front row of the seats up to within a few feet of the mirror-screen. Even so there is no objectionable feeling of nearness or eye strain, as might be expected, because the mirror is not focused while watching the performance—one looks beyond it.

It is claimed that the system gives greater depth to the image, almost a pseudo-stereoscopic effect, and that there is a considerable improvement in the quality of coloured films. One of the chief advantages is that there is no distortion from either side of the house.

time of his death that the great novelist himself had not then made up his mind on the subject!

R. C. Sheriff, who, of course, is the author of "Journey's End," adapted H. G. Wells's "Invisible Man" and John Galsworthy's "One More River" for Universal. He is also the author of "A Trip to Mars," which Universal owns and which may be put into production when Sheriff has completed his two Dickens assignments.

Archbishop Of Canterbury As Labour's Ambassador

NOTABLE WORK IN SLUMS

GREAT SYMPATHY WITH MASSES

DR. COSMO LANG

BY MILTON BRONNER

While it has always been true that cats could look at kings, the workingman generally has found it difficult to get a hearing in the high places. That is because cats can't embarrass the throne with urgent and unusual requests for assistance or succour.

Circumstance, however, has given British labour one spokesman who has free access to the heads of the government, the privy council and even the court of St. James—a man who is an able pleader, a superb diplomat and a qualified statesman. That spokesman, friend and staunch ally is Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, whose views are accepted by a greater audience than those of any other person except the royal family and the prime minister.

As the head of the Church of England, his sermons, speeches and op-eds to the press are regular items of important news; and the effectiveness of his pronouncements can be judged by the fact that a single letter to the press undid the results of several months of anti-Jewish propaganda.

It has been a strangely successful career. He is a Scot, born into a Presbyterian family, his father being Moderator of the Church of Scotland and Principal of Aberdeen University. He studied for the bar at Glasgow and Oxford Universities. Then, suddenly at the age of 26—he was born in 1864—he took Holy Orders in the Church of England.

His first church job was that of curate in Leeds in the slum parish. Ten years later he was Bishop of Stepney, in one of the poorest districts of London. His experiences at Leeds and in Stepney made a life-long impression upon him and he has ever been a friend of the poor working man.

CHAPLAIN TO QUEEN

In a few years he got his chance to show it in resounding fashion. He had been made chaplain to Queen Victoria and became Archbishop of York in 1908. As such, he had a seat in the House of Lords. In November, 1917, in the most critical period of the World War, some of the effects peers had been making supercilious remarks about the unrest among the labouring classes. Up rose the Archbishop of York to say:

"Vast numbers from the overcrowded houses in the slums came forward with the greatest readiness to help their country to which apparently they owed so little. The workers will rightly demand that pre-war conditions shall not be restored. Having borne the greater part of the strain and sacrifice of war, they are determined the rewards of their labour shall be adequate."

"The first cause of unrest in the unequal distribution of rewards in industry. . . . The second cause is the dehumanizing of industry, which leads the worker to feel that he is but a cog in the machine, liable to be scrapped like the machinery he attends. . . . It is a commonplace that industrial peace depends upon labour and capital joining together, but it is mockery to speak of partnership when labour is denied any real controlling voice in the settlement of conditions of work. They resent this Prussianizing of industry."

AHEAD OF ROOSEVELT

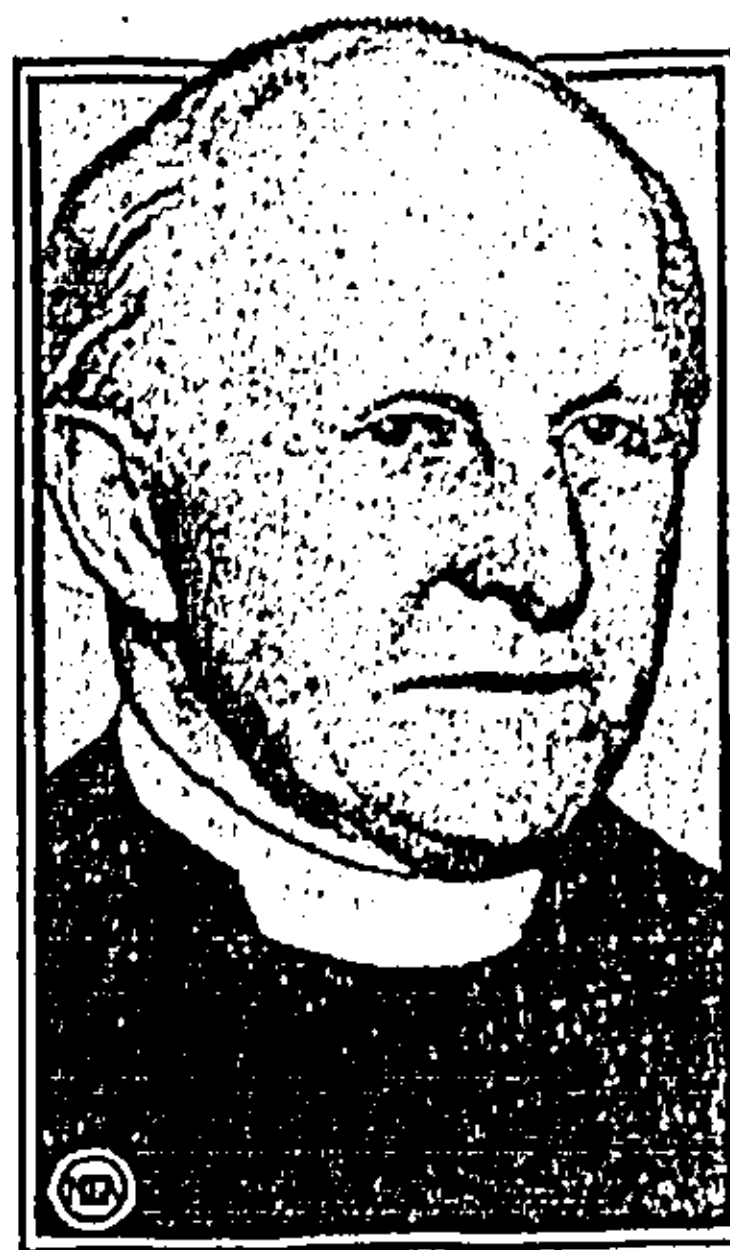

It was a regular Franklin Roosevelt speech—delivered by the prelate 15 years ago. Serving his country, Dr. Lang made war speeches in many of the towns of the industrial north of England, to the Grand Fleet, to the sections of the army at the front. Then in 1918 he went to the United States. He spoke to the American soldiers at Camp Union, to gatherings of American business men, to packed audiences at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and Trinity Church in New York City. It was not his only connection with the United States. In the spring of 1931 he made a tour of the Mediterranean and to Palestine as the guest of Mr. J. P. Morgan on the latter's palatial yacht, Corsair.

In 1928 he received his final and crowning step-up—he was made Archbishop of Canterbury. Incidentally, he is the first bachelor head of the church since 1757. And he's no old fogy, this 70-year-old bachelor. When others "grouse" about the new after-the-war generation, the Archbishop steps forward and says:

"I like the frankness, fresh vitality and curiosity of the new generation."

SUNDAY MOVIES

Two years ago there was up in Parliament a bill which would permit communities to have movies open on Sundays if they chose. Many churchmen and laymen fought it. Dr. Lang supported it, saying:

"People go to church because they want to. If there be any who do not want to, but go because there is no other comfortable place, I doubt whether their presence is an acceptable act of worship. . . . There is no proof that the cinema prevents people attending public worship. There is no use arguing people should spend a quiet evening at home. How can families, confined in one or two rooms find any rest or recreation there? The result is the elder people go to the 'pub' and the younger ones to the streets—a great source of evil."

He has expressed the same common sense British view on the necessity of disarmament, upon Germany's refusal morally to disarm, upon the vast importance of the press and films.

ATTEMPTED FORGERY

PRISON SCANDAL DENIED

Statements were made recently by the Home Office and the Prison Commissioners regarding allegations that a prisoner in Pentonville had been detected in printing a number of forged documents and that several prison officers acting in collusion with him had been summarily dismissed.

The Home Office stated that a prisoner at Pentonville Prison was recently discovered misusing the printing plant for the purpose of printing Board of Trade certificates for cooks. He was reported and dealt with according to rules. All the statements regarding the dismissal of prison officers and hastily summoned meetings of Prison Commissioners were devoid of foundation.

CENTRAL AIRPORT ON THE THAMES

LONDON'S SCHEME SAVES VALUABLE HOURS OF COMMERCE

London, Sept. 21. London's Old Man River, the Thames, is going to become air-minded in the near future.

With the speeding up of air services in Great Britain, plans are nearing completion for making the Thames the site of the first centrally situated airport in the heart of the British capital. The site of the proposed landing stage for giant airliners is within a stone's throw of the famous Traitors' Gate of the Tower of London through which political prisoners were brought by barge for execution in the past.

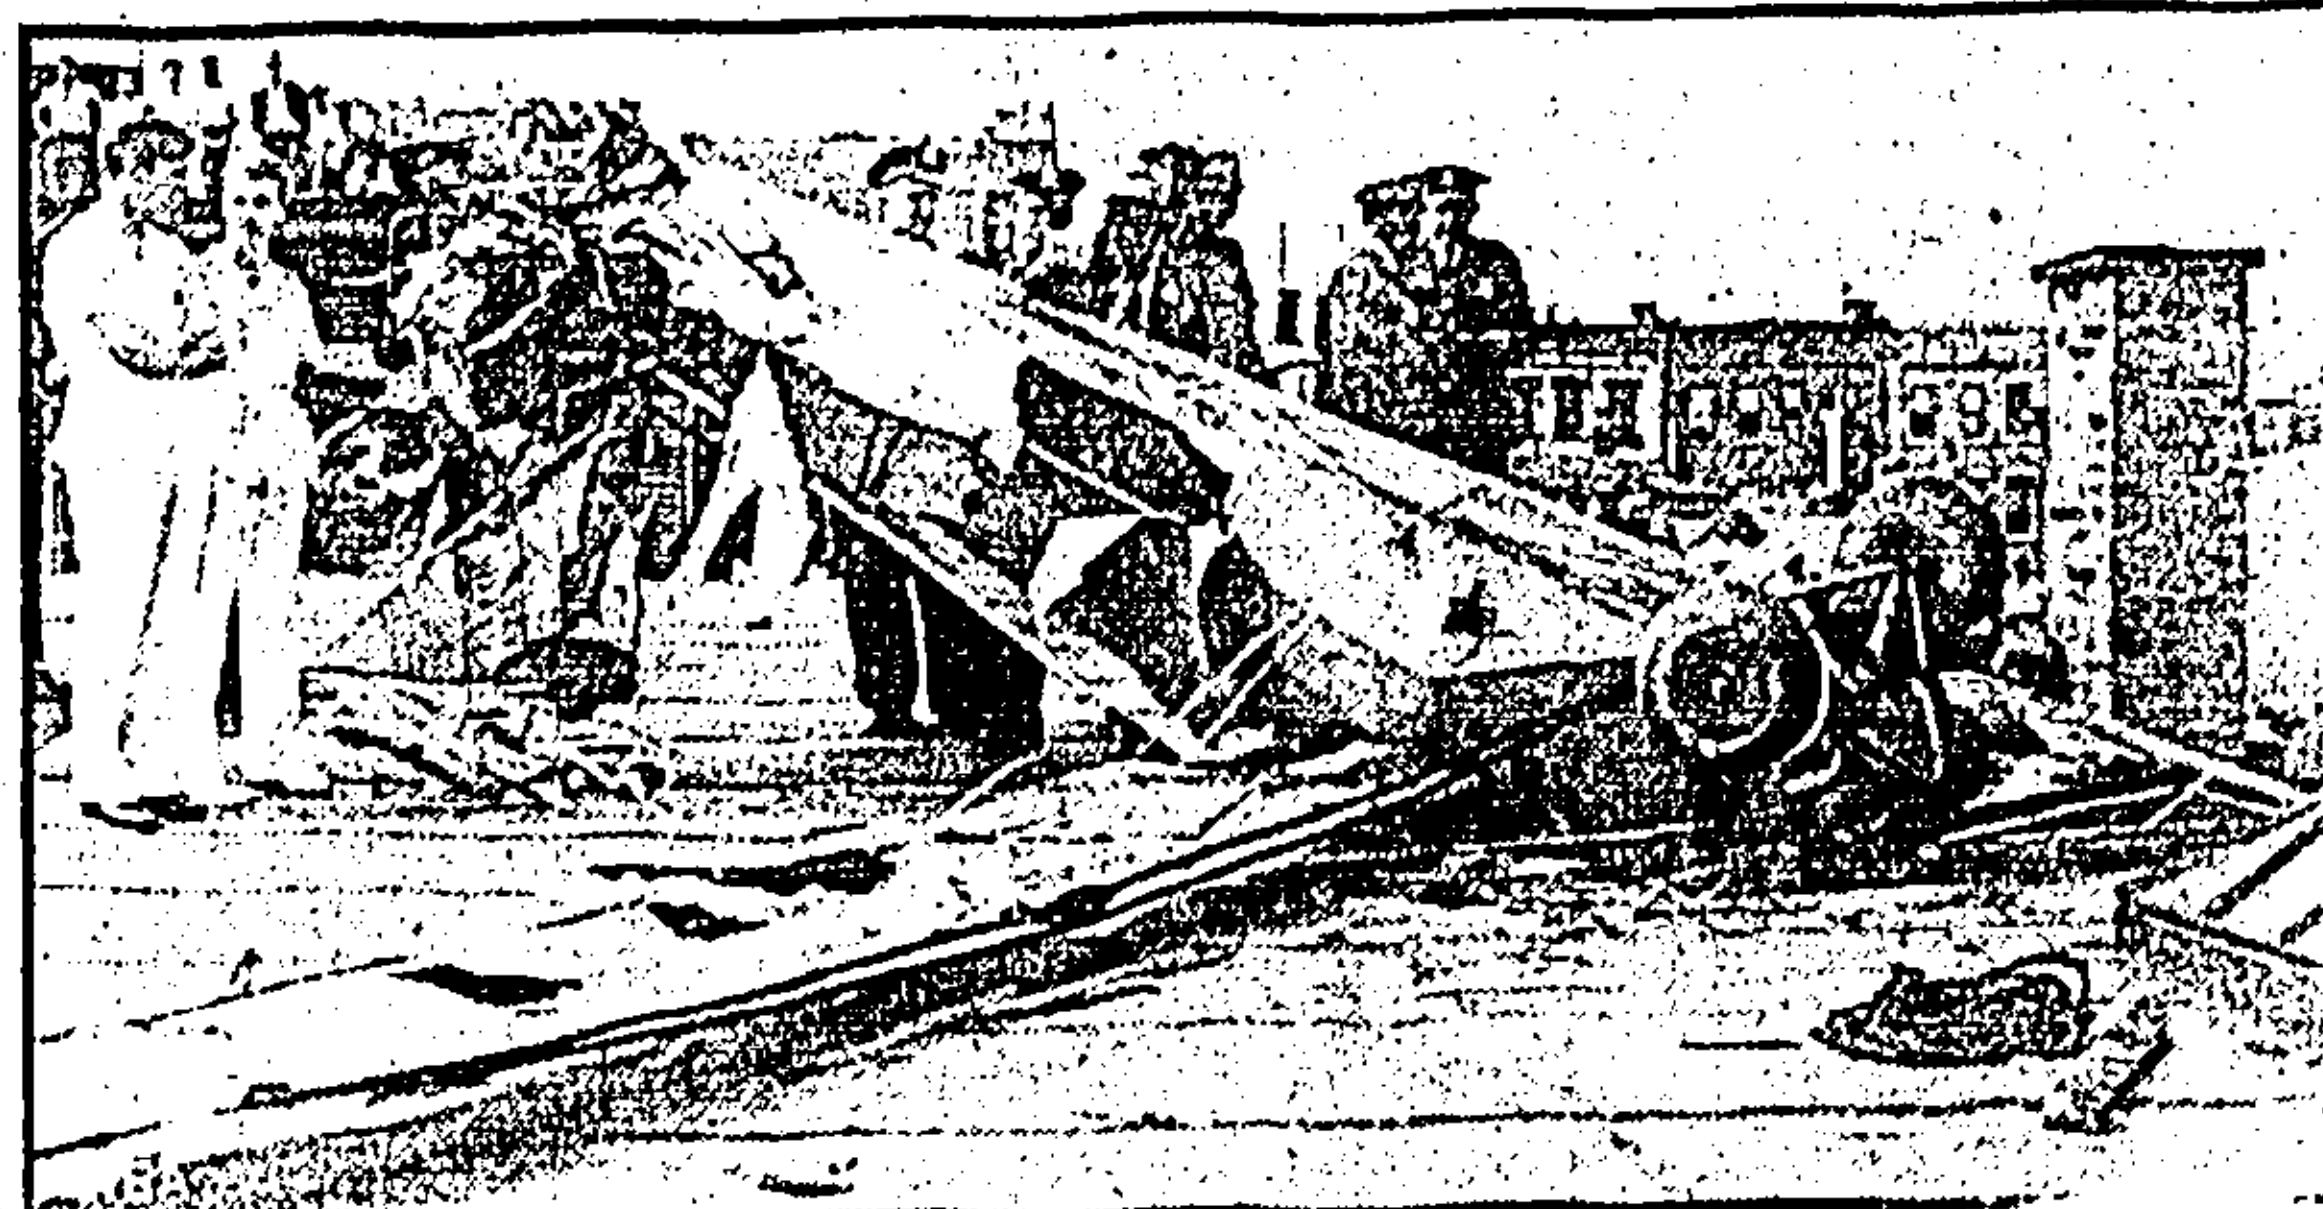

The main object of the scheme is to shorten the time taken by air between the centre of London and other European capitals. Speedy air connection with the heart of the metropolis has also become imperative with the development of London as the hub of Great Britain's own rapidly growing internal air lines. Although the city is already ringed with a circle of airports on its outer fringe, the nearest is from 40 to 45 minutes distant by road from the business centre and the West End.

OTHER CAPITALS.

Other European capitals are much better situated in this respect. For example Le Bourget airport is about a half-an-hour by road from the heart of Paris. Berlin's chief airport at Tempelhof is only fifteen minutes from the business centre.

The scheme now being worked out provides for the erection of a huge landing stage for airliners over the Thames itself and on the site of existing warehouses fronting the river between London Bridge and the Tower Bridge. The whole area has been thoroughly surveyed in recent months, and

Rehearsing for a war combat demonstration that might impress General Chang with his ability as a military pilot cost the life of Wong Qu-wah, Chinese aviation student, when his plane crashed to the roof of a house in Brooklyn, N.Y. The disaster took place after the propeller of the room-mate's plane clipped off the tail of Wing's ship.

At the office of the Prison Commissioners it was learned that the prisoner was a convict engaged in the prison printing shop, and that he was detected in an attempt to forge a Board of Trade certificate purporting to certify the credentials of a cook. The man used prison type, but his effort was described as "crude and incomplete." On being discovered by a warden he was subjected to disciplinary action by the Governor under prison regulations. There was no truth in the statement that the Prison Commissioners were still sitting at Pentonville investigating the matter.

It is expected that complete details of the plan will be published shortly.

ENORMOUS COST.

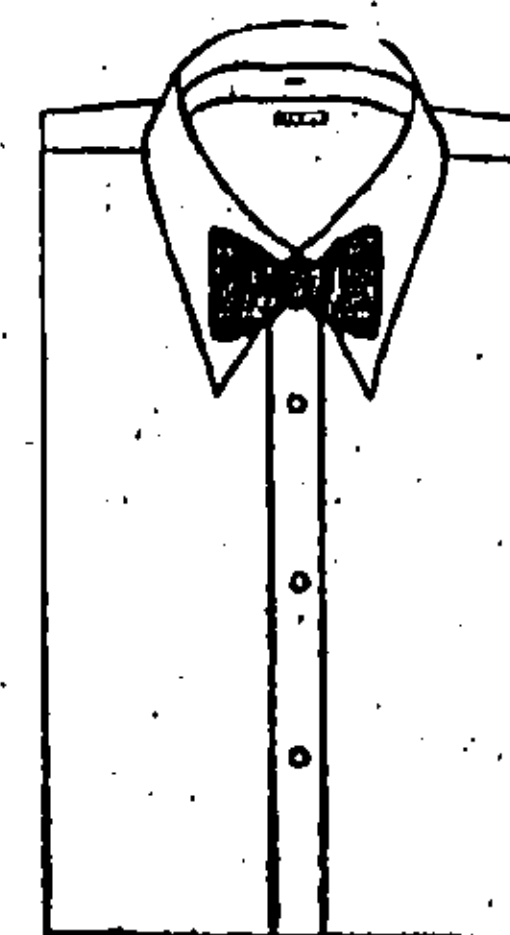

It is estimated that the cost of buying up the land and constructing the landing platform with adjoining runways would amount to at least £5,000,000.

Owing to the restricted space available for such an airport it is thought likely that its use would have to be limited to airplanes fitted with wheel-brakes and able to land at relatively low speeds. This, however, would probably be

TURMOIL AT THE COURTS

Paris—The Paris Bar is in a turmoil. Elderly barristers and judges are really disturbed by the growing attractiveness of the women lawyers. It was bad enough to be obliged to suffer the encroachment of the fair sex on the Law Courts preserves.

Year by year the invasion has continued, and now, according to the complaints of their masculine colleagues, the girls contrive to defeat the austerity of their black robes by all the well-known artifices of their sex. They use their charms to collect briefs and win cases, and at the same time destroy the peace of mind of impressionable judges and barristers. In fact they have become much too alluring.

Alarm is felt at the daring with which these fascinating and painted Portias accentuate their attractiveness. There is criticism of the dainty red, blue or white shoes which flash gaily beneath a black toge; of painted fingernails showing against bundles of papers waved in the air; of beads and bracelets and other bangles; of powder-puff and lipstick flaunted at every moment. And then, it is complained, an artfully unbuttoned robe exposing a bit of coloured silk or feminine skin, is apt to cause the attention of the court to wander from the case in hand.

The other day a judge noticed that the pretty blonde pleading before him was the same young woman who, only a week before, had appeared in the same court as a brunette.

"Something must be done," the male members of the profession are saying, "to check this tendency. The dignity of the law must be upheld."

So the authorities are being asked to make stricter regulations to this end.

U.S. JOURNALISTS

TOUR OF JAPAN AND MANCHUKUO

Tokyo, Sept. 23.
The American press mission consisting of twenty-six members, arrived here on September 18 and is making an extensive tour of Japan. Members were received by General Hayashi, Japanese War Minister, yesterday. In reply to a number of questions by the American mission, General Hayashi said that, although it was true that the Soviet Government were massing troops on Manchurian border, it was Soviet Russia's own affair and could not be considered as a possible source of rupture, for neither Japan, for which he could speak with certainty, nor Soviet Russia, for which he could speak with firm belief, wished to start warfare.

After completing their tour in Japan next month the American journalists will proceed to Korea and Manchuria. All travelling expenses will be borne by the Japanese Press Association. It is reported that they intend to visit China before returning home.—

COPPER RESTRICTION.

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE IN LONDON

London, Sept. 22.
Copper should benefit considerably by the news of the meeting of the international conference of the world's producers, which is likely to be held in New York some time in October, with the object of the introduction of some form of restriction.

It is pointed out, however, that satisfactory results are only likely to be obtained if producers other than American can reach a complete agreement with each other before the New York discussions.

Reuters understands that efforts in this direction are being made, but the negotiations are bound to be protracted owing to the difficulty of reaching unanimity on a plan of action.

Consequently, London circles do not anticipate the New York meeting before the end of October, when the principal bone of contention will be the question of American "non-blue" copper, which is at present being dumped extensively in Europe.—

MINE EXPLOSION.

TERRIBLE WELSH DISASTER.

London, Sept. 22.
One of worst coal pit disasters that has ever taken place in Britain occurred this morning at the Gresford Colliery, near Wrexham, North Wales. It is feared that the death toll will reach the total of at least 100 men.

It appears that the explosion took place in what is known as the Dennis district of the mine about 2 a.m., when a shift of about 400 to 500 men were down in the pit. About 200 of these were in an area apart from that in which explosion occurred, and these reached the surface safely. From the first, only faint hopes were entertained for the majority of those remaining below.

Rescue parties were quickly at work in conditions of great danger, since the violence of the explosion had loosened great masses of the roof, which continued to fall in on the main roads underground.

One of the first bodies brought to the surface was that of a volunteer rescuer.

Great quantities of stone dust were sent down to extinguish the flames. At the pit side, scores of doctors and nurses, and volunteers, ready equipped to go below, waited among the great crowd of miners' relatives.

Throughout the morning, a few bodies, scorched and coal-blackened, were brought to the surface to await identification, and members of the rescue parties, who returned, were able to give little hope of those miners who had been at work in the affected district.—
British Wireless.

London, Sept. 22.
There was a big explosion in the Gresford Colliery, Wrexham, this morning.
Six charred bodies have been brought to the surface; but a fierce fire is rendering the progress of the rescuers impossible.
The worst fears are entertained for 160 men, still entrapped.
Doctors and nurses have been rushed to the scene. There is a large and anxious crowd waiting at the pit head.

Later.
The fire is being steadily subdued, due to the heroic labours of the volunteers, who, working in relays, have formed a human chain in the underground furnace, and are passing along sacks of sand to smother the flames.

Five more bodies have been recovered, making a total of 15, including three rescuers.

If the fire can be extinguished within twelve hours, there is hope that some of the 162 entombed miners will be found alive.—
Reuters.

Later.
One hundred miners are feared to be dead, in consequence of the explosion. There is little hope of the rescue parties saving the entombed men.

The mine management contemplates sealing up the pit to allow the fire to burn out quicker. Up to the present, 16 bodies have been recovered.—
Reuters.

Hope Abandoned.

Wrexham, Sept. 22.
The mine management has made a statement saying that 100, or possibly 102 miners are still to be accounted for.—
United Press.

Bodies Recovered.
Wrexham, Sept. 23.
According to latest information, approximately 111 persons were known to be in the mine when the explosion occurred. Fifteen bodies have been recovered.—
United Press.

256 Entombed?

Wrexham, Sept. 23.
By midday, 16 charred bodies were recovered, including one rescuer. The management now states that there are approximately 100 miners entombed. Shortly after midday, however, it was unofficially stated that 256 miners are entombed, despite the management's statement.

All hope has now been abandoned, and the scene of the explosion has been sealed up.—

SIR CECIL CHUBB.

DONOR OF STONEHENGE TO THE BRITISH NATION

London, Sept. 22. The death has occurred of Sir Cecil Herbert Edward Chubb, 1st Baronet of Stonehenge.—Reuter.

Sir Cecil, who was 58 years of age, will be remembered as the donor of Stonehenge to the nation. He was educated at Cambridge University, and was J.P. for Salisbury. He was called to the Bar, Middle Temple, in 1907, and was created 1st Baronet of Stonehenge in 1910. He leaves a widow, one son and heir, John Corbin Chubb, and one daughter.

GENERAL O'DUFFY LEAVES UNITED PARTY

Dublin, Sept. 22. General O'Duffy has resigned the Presidency and membership of the United Ireland Party, together with the leadership of the Blue Shirts, and is succeeding in the respective positions by the former President of the Irish Free State, Mr. Cosgrave, and Commandant Cronin.

The step follows General O'Duffy's acute differences with other members of the party over collection of land annuities and General O'Duffy's policy of fostering the Blue Shirt organisation in Northern Ireland.—Reuter.

LONDON ARRANGEMENTS FOR VARSITY GRADUATES

London, Sept. 22. Adequate arrangements have been made for the care and accommodation of 26 Chinese students, including two girls, who have arrived in London to carry on their studies under the Boxer Indemnity remission scheme.

The girls will stay at the China Institute, while the men will be accommodated in a hotel nearby, pending their settlement in other parts of the country.

A special reception is being tendered the students in London on Wednesday.—Reuter.

After a holiday spent in Honolulu, Mr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, returned to Shanghai recently with Mrs. Sun Fo. They are shown here surrounded by friends and local officials after disembarking from the Empress of Japan.

BRITISH GESTURE

NEW HOME FOR ASSYRIANS

London, Sept. 22.

In October 1933, a committee of the League Council was set up to examine the question of the settlement of the Assyrians in Iraq, outside their own country.

The first possibility considered was settlement in Brazil, but at the Council meeting last June, it was decided that this scheme was not practicable.

The Committee was instructed to examine other possibilities, and they appealed to about 12 other foreign governments, enquiring if they could offer any assistance.

The British Government has been examining the possibility of finding a suitable area in British Guiana, and preliminary investigations show there is an area of about 30,000 square miles which appears to offer some of the conditions required.

The Assyrians are pastoral and agricultural people, who need land where they can graze cattle and raise crops.

The Committee will meet again at Geneva on Monday, and the British Government is informing them of the position.

Meanwhile, the Government of British Guiana has obtained an option of an area of between 1,200 and 2,000 square miles; but further investigations will be necessary before the land in British Guiana can be pronounced definitely suitable, and the Committee will no doubt continue the examination of possible areas in other parts of the world.

The willingness of the Assyrians, themselves, and of the Iraq Government, and the question of finance must be considered before any scheme becomes at all definite. The British Government has already announced its willingness to pay its normal share, as a League Power, to any league expenses involved.—British Wireless.

This is the sequel to the troubles in Iraq, in which it was alleged that British troops massacred Assyrian squatters.

DESPERATE BREAK

CONVICTS USE PISTOLS MADE OF SOAP

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 23. Using fake pistols made of soap, coated with shoe polish, two confederates of the late John Dillinger attempted to escape from prison, but without success.

The prisoners were Harry Pierpont and Charles Mackey. Both were confined in the "Death Row" in the Ohio penitentiary.

The guards responded to their bold challenge by shooting both of them. Mackey died later, and Pierpont is in serious condition.—United Press.

CHUENHUA CHINESE GUILTY OF HIGH TREASON

Tientsin, Sept. 23.

The local Court Martial to-day passed the death sentence on eleven persons who were recently arrested at Chuenhua District on a charge of high treason.

It will be recalled that their arrest was effected when a reactionary organ was raided by the Chinese police in that district.—Central News Agency.

AERIAL WARFARE OF THE FUTURE

Mr. Baldwin's famous speech on the danger from the air has received terrible corroboration from an authority on aerial warfare. A grim picture of the horrors of the next war was painted by Mr. Anthony Fokker, the famous Dutch aeroplane designer in the course of a recent interview. "The most appalling thing about the next war," he said, "is that no country will really be in a position to defend itself sufficiently against modern air attacks. The attacks will take place like lightning. Large squadrons of aeroplanes, probably amounting to many hundreds, will swoop down on the enemy country to get the first blow in. They will fly very high, out of sight above the clouds, or else very low, regardless of the risk, and they will attack with high-explosive and incendiary bombs. Although these attacks will, first of all, be aimed at military objects, they will at the same time bring disaster to the civil population. Imagine London being attacked by a ruthless fleet of 200 or 300 modern bombers dropping their incendiary bombs in hundreds of places simultaneously." Mr. Fokker is an expert who knows exactly what he is talking about. It was his machines during the War which constituted a great part of Germany's air strength and he is still engaged in designing and building aeroplanes. He says there is no effective defence against air attack. He further tells us that a first-class civil aeroplane is basically very little different from the high-powered war aeroplane and points out that his own latest model can carry six tons which might include two tons of bombs and can fly at a speed of nearly 200 miles per hour. That is to say, any country in which civil aviation is highly developed will be able to produce at short notice a strong military air force without having technically transgressed any armament limitation agreement. The moral is obvious. Since no air force, however efficient, can prevent the man-in-the-street from being bombed or his city from being destroyed, every Government must turn its attention at once from plans for re-armament to plans for strengthening the collective peace system. In the internationalisation of civil aviation, the abolition of private armament manufacture and the creation of an international police force, lies the only hope of safety for the soldier and the civilian alike. Mr. Fokker's picture of aerial warfare is a final answer to those experts who claim that increased armaments are necessary for national defence.

NOTES OF THE DAY

FOLLOW THE LEADER

Twenty years ago and less, the catch-cri was "Democracy." For this fine principle, nations went to war. To perpetuate a system of self-government, the peoples of the world laboured painfully and spent prodigiously. The inspired leaders did not stop to count the cost. The day of autocracy was passed, they said, and a new era dawned in which the people would rise triumphant to fulfil a splendid destiny. The road led through revolution, and to what? To-day one may see the consequence of political unrest and the destruction of the old order in the amazing bureaucratic erections which enthroned the new rulers, the dictators. Revolution brought to Russia her Stalin, to Italy Mussolini, to Germany Hitler. These are bright examples of the trend, indicating a tendency of the mass to shift to the shoulders of some super-man the burden which it fears itself to carry. Nor is the movement localised: Russia, Germany and Italy are merely good examples. There are others, Turkey, Poland, Spain, periodically, and some would have it that America is playing this old game of "Follow the Leader." There are some who insist that China, too, will have her dictator shortly. It is not for an unskilled observer to criticise, but no man can take offence at a question: Where does this new road lead? Though these great world figures be superior to the common run in the attributes of leadership, super-men though they may be, they cannot live for ever. And the question must eventually arise as to who will succeed them. Has Italy a man to-day prepared to step into the office of Signor Mussolini? It remains to be seen and meanwhile no man can answer one way or another. There was only one Napoleon.

RADICAL OFFER

Those members of society who exercise an influence upon the conduct of public affairs by the right of free speech, through the medium of a free press, and particularly by the free and untrammelled use of the ballot, are commonly said to enjoy political equality or, at any rate, equality of political opportunity. However unequal may be the distribution of material wealth among the citizens of such a nation, there is at least a widespread distribution of political power on an equalitarian basis. It is probable that only a very insignificant few in any community would deliberately surrender their political rights in return for the gift of economic equality. Nearly everybody desires to see a more equitable distribution of goods, but what nation would surrender the right to elect its own rulers and dismiss them at will, the right of organisation for political action, the right to criticise the government of the day, the ancient right of petition, and all merely for the purpose of getting rid of economic inequality? Nevertheless such is the bargain which revolutionary radicals offer in all seriousness to their fellow citizens. The planned economy of the revolutionaries in its very nature, as conceived by its advocates, is a slave economy. The revolutionaries themselves, however unwilling they may be to dwell upon this fact or to encourage others to discuss it, make no attempt to deny that under the proposed planned economy the individual will be required by the bureaucrats of the new era to do his day's work in this factory rather than that, to serve the State in whatever field of effort is chosen for him, to sacrifice his own prejudices and predilections and bring them into line with the opinions of those who have contrived to obtain political control of the economic activities of himself and his fellows.

KIND BUREAUCRACY

The revolutionaries say, of course, that all of this regimentation will be tenderly and benevolently managed by the kind-hearted and humane bureaucrats, that it will be done with the idea of putting square pegs into square holes, and thus making everybody contented and useful; but they make no effort to deny that whether the bureaucrats in office at the moment are kind-hearted or the reverse, the process of regimentation must inevitably go on, that there is no escape from it under the planned economy of socialism. They admit, though with reluctance, that they desire to inaugurate and carry out a planned, and therefore a centrally-directed economy, that is to say an economy in which the citizens are deprived of their political rights—a slave economy. "It is clear that if such an alternative were placed before him, that of political equality accompanied by economic inequality, as contrasted with economic equality accompanied by political slavery, the ordinary British citizen will certainly not choose the latter."

TREATY ACHIEVEMENTS AT GENEVA

A surprisingly large number of treaties have been registered with the Secretary of the League of Nations, since it began its work in 1920.

A report which has just been made public indicates how active diplomats have been in the past 14 years, and how faithfully they have followed the rule which calls for the submission of their agreements to the international organisation.

Have there been "secret" accords among members of the League? It is sometimes suggested that there have been, but if so they do not possess legal validity.

It is revealed that no fewer than 3,428 treaties and international engagements have been registered, 240 last year, 218 in 1933, and 264 in 1932.

Among the treaties registered in 1934, there is one general political treaty, namely, that concluded between Roumania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia; five treaties of non-aggression concluded with the Soviet Union; 18 treaties for arbitration, conciliation and pacific settlement of disputes; two treaties of peace and friendship; three treaties concerning general relations, and seven conventions concerning consular relations and conditions of residence have also been concluded in the past year.

Thirty-four treaties have been registered in 1934 under the heading of judicial and extradition conventions; and in the category of delimitation of frontiers, frontier traffic and similar questions, nine treaties have been registered, all between European countries.

As in previous years, the greatest number of treaties registered have been economic, financial and taxation conventions, namely, 34 concerning special problems and 53 more general in character.

Six transit conventions, 13 aerial navigation conventions, 16 conventions concerning postal, telegraphic and telephonic relations, and two conventions on tonnage measurement have been registered.

The other conventions deal with social, labour and health questions, waterways and inland navigation, intellectual and artistic relations, property rights and interests, administrative questions, liquor traffic, fisheries, opium and other narcotic drugs, etc.

These various treaties have been registered by 86 states. The number of treaties to which they are parties are shown as follows:

Africa.—Union of South Africa, 5; Rhodesia, 1; Yemen, 1.

America.—Argentina, 6; Bolivia, 3; Brazil, 11; Canada, 1; Chile, 4; Colombia, 1; Haiti, 1; Honduras, 1; Mexico, 2; Nicaragua, 1; Panama, 4; Paraguay, 2; Peru, 1; Salvador, 1; Venezuela, 1.

Asia.—Afghanistan, 1; China, 1; India, 6; Iraq, 5; Palestine, 1; Persia, 2.

Australia.—New Zealand, 1; Commonwealth of Australia, 3.

Europe.—Germany, 18; Austria, 12; Belgium, 10; United Kingdom, 30; Bulgaria, 4; Denmark, 18; Dantzig, 1; Spain, 9; Estonia, 11; Finland, 8; France, 21; Greece, 4; Hungary, 13; Iceland, 5; Italy, 24; Latvia, 9; Lithuania, 5; Luxembourg, 4; Norway, 14; Netherlands, 14; Poland, 28; Portugal, 3; Roumania, 27; Sweden, 13; Switzerland, 7; Czechoslovakia, 14; Turkey, 15; U. S. S. R., 10; Yugoslavia, 35; Permanent Council of the Little Entente, 1; Conference of Ambassadors, 1.

Fourteen treaties have been communicated by the United States in accordance with the arrangements made by the United States for that purpose. It should be noted that recently the United States signified its intention henceforward not only to communicate but also to register treaties with the Secretariat in the same way as is done by members of the League—a remarkable forward step which brings the United States into line with League endeavour.

Ten international engagements concluded under League auspices and deposited with the Secretariat have been registered ex-officio as an automatic consequence of their entry into force.

At the present time, the treaty series in which all registered international engagements are published in the language in which they are concluded, together with English and French translations wherever necessary, now comprises 142 volumes, each of about 450 pages.

The new pact of friendship, arbitration and non-aggression between Turkey and Yugoslavia which has just been ratified unconditionally by the Yugoslav Parliament is felt to constitute a new strand in the status quo net which is being woven about Bulgaria by its "anti-revisionist" Balkan neighbours.

The new treaty also strengthens Yugoslavia's position relative to Italy, it is contended. It is recalled that for some years Turkey has worked in close diplomatic co-operation with Rome and added to the influence of Italy in the Balkans rather than to that of France.

Italy until recently has considered Turkey, Bulgaria, Albania and Greece as favourable to Rome's Balkan policy. But Albania more than a year ago detached itself somewhat from the Italian orbit, while Greece is supposed to have weakened its ties with Rome by joining the Balkan pact of last February.

Now Turkey has concluded a special treaty with Yugoslavia, the Government of which has not been too friendly toward Italy in the past.

Turkey's chief reason for its pact with Yugoslavia, it is believed here, is a fear of Italian expansion in the Mediterranean. Another reason is the close co-operation of Turkey with Russia, now a part of France's security system. The pact, it is said, is also part of a general plan of the anti-revisionist Balkan state to form such a system of interlocking treaties about Bulgaria that Sofia will be forced into a general Balkan bloc, from which it has hitherto held aloof.

The new pact is based on the London definition of aggression, contains a clause against any third power that might attack either Yugoslavia or Turkey, and establishes arbitration as the only means for settling disputes between the two contracting parties. Its working is very similar to that of the Kellogg Pact.

The Very Idea!

DEEP SEA FISHING
By George

ANOTHER fishy story comes to light with the report "of the largest tunny fish ever landed at Scarborough!" being caught by a naval lieutenant.

The biggest catch of tunny ever made is credited to Dempsey but that is a story that the modest angler seldom relates.

We are inclined to reminisce over our own deep sea fishing off Kowloon Dock when we hear these tales and we can produce a photograph of the biggest and most savage garoupa that ever sailed the seven seas.

It was about seven o'clock in the morning when the harbour was rocked by huge waves which told of a gigantic subterranean struggle between a deep sea monster and the little worm which we had salted and spiced before lowering it into the crystal depths.

Our boat was almost upset by rollers about thirty feet high which dashed against the shore. Had they been a foot higher we should be hearing this story from Davy Jones himself.

About four in the afternoon the garoupa—which we afterwards found it to be—blew up a spray of water and chugged off towards Lyemooon at a steady 15 knots.

Occasionally the sea deacon came up for a breath of air but each time we slugged it through the tail with a harpoon, hoping thereby to put its steering apparatus out of order.

The next day found us still patrolling round the harbour a little tired through sitting in the boat but not so tired as the garoupa who was pulling it.

With the arrival of the Press and photographers off Repulse Bay, our fish made a great effort to come up to the occasion, surging out of the water and doing a couple of loops before flopping back to receive another harpoon in the lug.

When the garoupa finally tugged us in to the shore it had got so thin with its exertions that it was nothing like the fish we started off with.

In fact it was so reduced that an ignorant fellow coming along shortly afterwards thought it was too small to be out of the water and chucked it in again.

That's why we can never get anybody to believe our story.

DUMB BELLES LETTRES.
By Juliet Lowell.

We grew to love that sofa.

SOFA LOVE.

Mr. Louis Schlesinger.
Real Estate.

Our dear Mr. Schlesinger: Since we moved into our apartment we have been endlessly fooled, cajoled, and harried by your agents. This perfect dream of a place was rented to us fully furnished and containing one of the sweetest little Davenport you ever set eyes upon—that is, if you go in for things of that kind, as we do. Just the darlingest comfy-cushioned-corner-warmer that ever yielded its smooth, soft bosom to a pair of tired-out hips. We grew to love that sofa, Mr. Schlesinger, and believe us, when people begin to have soft feelings about a piece of furniture, you have the makings of a nice problem when it comes to taking it away from them.

Mr. Steiner is a right well-spirited person; excellently smooth of tongue and pleasing to the eye, but withal, it seems he is a trifle too greatly given to subterfuge, doubtless because the time hangs heavy on his hands. He said that the lounge did not match our other furniture, and that we were not entitled to the bed feature which it contained.

When he threatened to take it away from us we threatened to break our lease. We are now on the point of leaving with our snouts in the wind. Don't you think it's just too mean for a great big company like yours to take people's lounges, davenports, sofas, hip-receivers and the like away from them ruthlessly and turn them out in the cold just so that you can use the furniture to fool others with? Have we actually been fooled, or do we just think we have?

Hoping to hear from you before they come for the kitchen sink, we remain, yours very truly,
Charles G.

"Well, I'll tell you what I'd do if my wife talked to me like that."

AQUATIC SPORTS

AMBULANCE MEETING AT NORTH POINT

Brigade Title

The Brigade Championship was won by Lo Yuk-wing yesterday morning, when the St. John Ambulance Brigade held their annual swimming meeting at the Chinese Athletic Association, North Point.

The Divisional Championship was won by the Chinese Athletic Association, who secured a score of 10 points, and the Individual Championship was won by Chan Shek-pui (King's College Old Boys) and Lo Yuk-wing (Chinese Athletic Association) who tied with a score of six points each.

At the conclusion of the events the prizes were presented to the winners by Mrs. J. Lalston.

The results were as follows: 100 metres free style—1, Lo Yuk-wing; 2, A. K. Minu; 3, Chan Sul-po. Time 20.2/6 sec.

Life Saving—1, Chan Shek-pui; 2, Chiu Fook-in; 3, Lo Poon-ho and Lo Ping-sang.

50 metres breast stroke—1, Chan Shek-pui; 2, Lo Poon-ho; 3, Chik Suk-fuk. Time 43.4/6 sec.

50 metres back stroke—1, Lo Yuk-wing; 2, Chan Sul-ping and Lo Ping-sang. Time 43.4/6 sec.

200 metres team relay—1, China Athletic Association; 2, King's College (Present); 3, Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Divisional Championship—1, China Athletic Association (10 points); 2, King's College Old Boys (9 1/2 points); 3, Chinese Y.M.C.A. (6 1/2 points).

Individual Championship—1, Chan Shek-pui (King's College Old Boys); and Lo Yuk-wing (Chinese Athletic Association), 6 points each.

NORTH POINT GALA

Chinese Civil Servants' Hold Meeting

A successful swimming gala was staged at the Chinese Civil Servants' Club, North Point, on Saturday, despite the fact that several of the best Chinese swimmers were not competing, being away in Canton for the Kwangtung provincial aquatic sports meet.

The 200 metres four style event, open to the Colony, was carried off by Chan Fook-shing, of the Chinese Civil Servants' Club, with Mak Wai-ming a close second. The 100 metres water polo match between the Whites and the Blacks resulted in a win for the former team by two goals to one. Chan Fook-shing netted both goals for the winners, and Mak Wai-ming scored for the losers.

The prizes, at the conclusion of the meeting, were distributed by Mr. Richard Shim.

RESULTS.

200 Metres (open to the Colony).—1, Chan Fook-shing; 2, Mak Wai-ming; 3, Chan Yu-tin. Time; 3 min. 10 sec.

50 Metres handicap (men's) 35 years and over.—1, Yeung Kai-yu; 2, Leung Kwok-tai.

100 Metres for girl beginners.—1, Chan Yuk-king; 2, Lai Sau-ye; 3, Leung Ching-chun.

100 Metres (men's).—1, Mak Wai-ming; 2, Ip Chun-cho; 3, Lam Ping-tong.

50 Metres for Chinese Civil Servants.—1, Wong Po-wan; 2, Leung Kwok-tai.

50 Metres breast stroke for boys and girls.—1, Miss So Wai-king; 2, Miss Lai Sau-fan; 3, Miss Lau Wan-tao.

100 Metres back stroke (women's).—1, Chan Woon-kin; 2, Chan Ching-ling.

VARSITY AQUATICS

Records Established At Annual Meeting

Ricel Hall won the Inter-Hotel championship shield at the annual aquatic meeting of the Hongkong Y.M.C.A., held in the European Y.M.C.A., bath on Saturday afternoon, with a total of 70 points. St. John's Hall were second with 22 points, followed by Elliot, May, Lugard and Morrison.

H. L. Osoz, captain of Ricel Hall, was the outstanding swimmer of the afternoon. Not only did he win the individual championship, with a total of 23 points, but he also smashed three of his own records established last year. His records were made in the 220 yards, 440 yards and 880 yards free-style events.

Three other records were established. L. Oliveira (Ricel Hall) registered 04 seconds in the 100 yards free-style event, in which Osoz was placed second. E. H. Koh (St. John's) plunged 50 ft. 1 inch, to set up a new record, and G. Lopez threw the water polo ball 62 ft. 6 inches, bettering the previous mark by over six feet.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotowal, G.M.C., presented the prizes.

THE RESULTS.

880 Yards Free Style.—1, H. L. Osoz (Ricel); 2, Cheung Wing-ong (Elliot); 3, H. C. Ho (Ricel). Time 22.1/5 sec. (Record).

440 Yards Free Style.—1, H. L. Osoz (Ricel); 2, E. H. Koh (St. John's); 3, Leo Poo-chim (Elliot). Time 1 min. 11.5 sec. (Record).

220 Yards Free Style.—1, H. L. Osoz (Ricel); 2, E. H. Koh (St. John's); 3, Leo Poo-chim (Elliot). Time 1 min. 11.5 sec. (Record).

The above photograph, showing bride and groom and attendants, was taken after the wedding at the German Church, Shek-hei, of Mr. Robert O. Ferguson, of Manila, and Miss Luisa Grace Maxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Maxwell. The civil ceremony took place at H. B. M. Consulate in the morning. There was a large gathering at the church and afterwards at the reception.

ball on the leg stump which broke away to the off. In view of the fact that the wicket offered but little assistance to spin bowling, Bonavia's work was excellent.

Smith maintained a good accurate length to obtain most of his five victims, but he was not afraid to adopt variations in flight and pace and was never easy to get away.

Jex kept wicket in creditable style, taking everything very efficiently.

Ernest Zimmern, former Craigengower wicket-keeper-batsman, had his first try out of the season, and there is no doubt that he will prove a decided asset to Kowloon this winter. Nevertheless the club is confronted with the problem of finding a good opposite bowler to Burnett.

PODMORE'S VITALITY

jugglery inside of the penalty area to create the belief that the Chinese would score a lot of goals. This is undoubtedly their chief weakness; in fact it is about their only serious weakness, but it is of such importance that it can easily lose them games, as it did last season.

WITHOUT BLEMISH.

Comparatively speaking the defence was without blemish. Both Li and Lau Mau cleared vigorously and with the utmost confidence; they were never out-manoeuvred, covering well and invariably the key to a sound strategical position.

Li Kwok-ki was a splendid left half and Wong Mee-shun looks as though he will remain a pivot for the rest of the season. Leung Wing-chui gave a definitely "early season" display.

Tam Kong-pak was a treat to watch. His leadership was excellent, and as I have already intimated he was largely responsible for both goals. The second one which he directly scored followed a wonderful individual effort, when he crowded out three opponents before getting in his final kick.

Another very bright member of the attack was Tso Kwai-shing, who, as successor to Yeung Shui-yuk promised to develop into one of the foremost right wingers in local football. He combines a great turn of speed with first rate ball control, a good knowledge of the art of dribbling, and a fine kick with either foot. A lot will be heard of this player in the near future.

There is very little to comment about the play itself. The exchanges were so keen that they always remained interesting, and there were plenty of thrills in front of both goals. The Rest had most of the territorial advantage, and certainly twice as many scoring opportunities. But they were constantly ignored and because of this the Chinese won. The Rest could have scored at least four goals in the second half, by which I mean four open goals were missed. They had to rest content with one, netted by Ridley following a perfect centre from Mathias.

L'S CLEAR SHOT.

This came as an equaliser, the Chinese scoring two minutes before the interval. Li Tin-sang went up to just over the halfway line to take a free kick, and judge it perfectly dropped the ball right in the goalmouth, where Cord hesitated a fraction of a second and had not the ball bundled out of his hands by the enterprising Tam Kong-pak.

After the Rest had equalised they fairly monopolised the play, but Hingins was badly hurt while making an open goal, and during his absence, Tam took the ball down very cleverly, outwitted Mullane and Co., and beat Cord with a rasping drive.

CRAIGENGOWER REGAIN BOWLS TITLE

KOWLOON BOWLING GREEN FAIL BADLY AGAINST DOCKS

INDIANS HELD TO A DRAW
Kowloon Bowling Green Club failed badly in their last attempt to remain challengers to the Craigengower "A" for the first division lawn bowls league title, and, beaten on all rinks by Kowloon Dock, surrendered the championship to the Happy Valley team, who easily beat their colleagues on Saturday.

The Bowling Green could do nothing right at Kowloon Docks, losing by 26 shots. Drake's rink was nine down to Brown's four, while Randall's rink went down by eight shots and Guy's by seven. At Craigengower, where the A and B teams clashed in the season's return match, the seniors won comfortably, being held on only one rink, where Marchant, Milton, Summons and Lewis drew 20-11 with U. M. Omar's four. The first drawn match of the season was played at Kowloon Bowling Green when the home club won the Indian Recreation Club, second division champions. Both recorded 49 shots. The Police, contestants for second place honours, were beaten by Kowloon Cricket Club, and the Bowling Green are now in a good position to finish runners-up.

INTERNATIONAL SHIELD

Surprise Win Of Ireland Over India

MORE CONSISTENT

Very indifferent bowling featured the second round game between India and Ireland on the Civil Service rinks yesterday, in the International lawn bowls competition. The Irish side played a much more consistent game than their opponents who were all, with the exception of U. M. Omar, inclined to be erratic.

The green was fast and very few good heads were seen, but Ireland deserve full credit for their win of 25 shots to 17 in 21 ends.

The rinks were:
India—A. M. Omar, A. A. Razack, K. M. Omar and U. M. Omar (skip).
Ireland—J. F. Lunny, K. L. Lockart, J. W. E. Field and J. Cavanagh (skip).

India lost the first end by a single shot but took the lead when they then won the second. They then dropped off, and lost the next four successive ends while Ireland increased their total to 10 shots. U. M. Omar played two very fine woods in the seventh end to leave his rink lying three and Razack was mainly responsible for diminishing the deficiency by two points on the next end. They took the ninth with a single.

Then came another period of reverses for the Indians, when they lost the following four ends by three, one, one and four shots, giving Ireland a substantial lead of 19 points to 9. The Indians took the next end with a three shot lie, and Cavanagh gave his side two points on the fifteenth with his last wood.

The score at this point stood at 21 shots to 12 in favour of Ireland, but the Indians made up and got single lies on the next three ends, bringing their total to 16, 52 points behind, with three ends to play. They hoped of getting in the lead were dashed on the next two ends, which the Irishmen won by a single and a three respectively. They won the last end, however, by two shots.

DRAW FOR SEMI-FINAL

The semi-final matches will be played next Sunday afternoon, commencing at 3.30 p.m. The draw has been made but the grounds are not yet known.

WALK-OVER FOR PORTUGAL

AUSTRALIAN RINK ROUTED

R. F. Luz skipped Portugal to a convincing victory by 33 shots to three over Australia in the International Bowls Rink tournament for the Gutierrez Shield at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club yesterday afternoon.

Australia were only able to score on two ends. They registered a two on the eighth end, and a single on the 10th. They were lying three shots on the last end, but W. H. B. Muskett, their skip, altered the lay of the woods with his first shot, and made an opening to enable Luz to creep in and lay the shot. Portugal scored three on this end.

Included in Portugal's score were one five on the fourth end, one four on the ninth end, two threes and three twos.

Luz was the outstanding player on the day, and time and again he was applauded for some brilliant bowling. Next to him came F. V. V. Ribeiro, the No. 2, who had the better of his opponent W. K. Way. L. A. Gutierrez, the No. 1, was apparently totally off form, and seldom got the better of G. Leo, G. Silva, the No. 3, played consistently well, although he was at times apt to be a bit short.

For Australia, G. Leo performed best, and frequently kept training the "Jack" Way, the No. 2, was good and bad in patches, while E. C. Fincher, No. 3, could never find his length on the tricky green. Muskett, as skip, was no match for Luz. In the last end, when Australia were lying 33-3, Muskett might very well have blocked, but he drew instead, rather heavily, and pushed the "Jack" out towards his opponent's woods, and Luz took the opportunity by laying another one to give his side three.

The rinks were:
Portugal—L. A. Gutierrez, F. V. V. Ribeiro, G. G. Silva and R. F. Luz (skip).
Australia—G. Leo, W. K. Way, E. C. Fincher and W. H. B. Muskett (skip).

Chinese Still Making The Same Old Mistakes Noticed Last Season

TAM KONG PAK OUTSTANDING

MATCH DESCRIBED BY "VERITAS"

The lure of football is again asserting itself in Hongkong after an interval of about five months, and in spite of the high temperature, teams were very active during the week-end putting in final practice matches before the start of the season proper next week.

Chief attraction, naturally, was the friendly encounter between the Combined Chinese and the Rest at Caroline Hill yesterday. Actually the term "Combined Chinese" is a misnomer, for, as so often happens with these so-called combined teams, half of the originally selected players did not turn out, and yesterday saw a complete South China Athletic team in the exception of Fung King-mui on the left wing.

The Rest also had some changes. Robertson, injured himself while playing for the Club on Saturday and cried off; Chris Fife was a non-starter, as also was Eastman. In consequence the left half and Stanley came in at right half and Baldry operated on the left wing.

The ground was in excellent condition—very fast, but with a much smoother surface than last season when ball control was often rendered extremely difficult. The attendance was possibly not what one might have expected, yet it was by no means poor. The Caroline Hill area is a large place to fill, and to have the main stand a third full, the terrace behind the Sookunpoo goal well patronised and a fair sprinkling in the other stand behind the entrance goal, is not at all bad considering the weather and its consequent counter attractions.

NEW COVERED TERRACE.

Incidentally South China supporters have reason to be gratified by the club's officials, who have improved the ground by covering the terrace behind the entrance goal. May I suggest, however, some attention to the goal nets. There were large rents in both of them.

As for the game which saw the Chinese win (luckily) by the odd goal in three, one can fairly describe it as a reasonably good display taking all things into consideration. Adopting a strictly critical attitude one would say it was a somewhat scrappy game, and typical of the sort one expects to see somewhat round about March. There were lots of appalling blunders, a considerable amount of ball wastage by indiscriminate passing, a lack of plan in both attacks, and numerous scoring chances allowed to slip by.

Against this there was some amazing energy and delightful keenness shown by all the players. There were also intervals when the football promised to reach a comparatively high standard, and most certainly there were some very good individual displays.

Players like Podmore, Mullane, Baldry, L. Tin-sang and Tam

Robertson, who played so well in the first half, were in the middle of the game, and the inclusion of the Gosanos and Beltrac enables them to have a much better attack.

PODMORE.

Rest Beaten After Having Most Of The Play At Caroline Hill

MULLANE GOOD AS EVER

beginning. None of them appear to have suffered any loss of skill during their enforced absence from the soccer field.

PODMORE'S VITALITY.

Podmore's vitality was of the brand which did so much in carrying the Borderers to great triumphs last season. He had some glorious duels with Wong Mee-shun and earned a slight balance of honours therefrom. His interceptions and tackling were wonderfully timed, and it is with a positive sigh of relief that one recalls this young man will be available for public inspection on the local football field until November. When he does leave, Hongkong is going to lose one of the most skilled centre-halves ever seen here. But we will refrain from anticipating such an unpleasant moment.

But Podmore was not the only one yesterday to leave a satisfying impression. Mullane was particularly attractive, making the subjugation of Tsy Qua-tong look a very simple matter. Neither did he ever cry best to Fung King-mui when it came to a stand up encounter for possession.

Cord's goalkeeping recalled a fact made apparent last season, that he is an interpreter in the making. He had more work to do than his opposite number, and except for the way he snatched for Li Tin-sang's long shot, which led to the Chinese first goal, remained errorless throughout the game. Up in the forward line only Dick Ridley played as though it were the first big match of the season. A natural footballer, he can be expected to remain on the same high level of efficiency all the year round. His neat foot-work was constantly making things difficult for the Chinese defence, and Leung Wing-chui at right half was never in the same class.

MATHIAS SHOTS TOO OFTEN.

Unfortunately Ridley's work was not reflected in the rest of the attack. Higgins was slow to seize openings, and although continually receiving the ball in favourable positions, never once tested Wong Wai-ki with a really good shot. Elliot did a certain amount of useful constructive work, but was without finish; Mathias shot too often, and it is to be hoped that his goal-scoring achievements of last season are not going to make him forget the first duties of a winger. Baldry was reasonable while he had plenty of room and time in which to deliver his kicks, but once hustled, or tackled, and he faded into obscurity.

My reactions to the general type of play indulged in by the Chinese lead me to suggest that they are in danger of committing the same mistakes which cost them so dearly a few months ago. They are still deliberately choosing the close-passing game in front of goal, making the onlooker feel that all of the forwards are afraid of taking the responsibility of the final shot.

True Tam Kong-pak did let fly with one or two hot ones, scored a beautiful goal and was chiefly responsible for the other as a result of his timely rush at Cord; but there was far too much ball-

Recreio Benefit From The Gosanos' Presence

(By "Veritas").

Some indication of what the presence of the Gosano brothers is going to mean to the Recreio this year was given on Saturday, when the Portuguese club met the Navy in a friendly match. A. V. Gosano, playing at centre-forward and Bernie at inside left, were in dazzling form, and continuance of it means the Recreio can look forward to a season of successes.

Nevertheless I am wondering if A. V. will remain leader of the attack. I believe he is actually ear-marked for left back, particularly the clever Silva-Netto, but it may be the Recreio feel Bowen is strong enough to occupy the position. He played a reasonably sound game against the Navy, although his tactical play is still somewhat elementary.

Beltrac is a decided asset to the half-back line which was one of the big weaknesses of the team last year, and if the Recreio can spare the Gosano brothers in the forward line it means that a lot of goals are going to accrue.

Taken all round the Recreio have every reason to regard the future with optimism. They have retained, and the inclusion of the Gosanos and Beltrac enables them to have a much better attack.

CLUB ARE STILL IMPROVING

Better Balanced Team This Year

The Hongkong Football Club are also silently congratulating themselves, following a really impressive showing against the Lincolns.

There is promised balance in the team this year which has hitherto been sadly lacking. Later on, of course, they will be strengthened by the return of "Bunny" Bickford, due back about the middle of November, but in the meantime they have good reason to regard the early part of the league season with equanimity.

Robertson, Pote-Hunt and Tavlin gave a repeat performance of sound half back play, and behind them Sydney Strango and George Rodger were at their best. Supporters noted with pleasure the inclusion of an all-round improvement.

McINNES SHOWS REAL INTERPORT FORM

VERY FINE INNINGS MAKES HIM ALMOST CERTAINTY

PEREIRA ALSO IMPRESSES

(By "Round Arm")

The most entertaining feature of Saturday's Interport cricket trial was the batting of McInnes. It was by far the most sparkling knock in any of the trial games to date, and should prove good enough to make him a certainty for Shanghai. The innings will certainly go a long way to establishing him in local cricket.

R. ABBIT ON THE CRICKET TRIAL.

COMPREHENSIVE CRITIQUE IN FINAL EDITION.

R. Abbit, the Telegraph's cricket correspondent, has contributed a comprehensive critique of the Interport cricket trial held on Saturday. Unfortunately, owing to the exigencies of space, it has been found impossible to include this in to-day's first edition of the Telegraph, but it will appear in the final edition this afternoon.

R. Abbit's review is the most authoritative statement made in any of the local papers on Saturday's important match, and in it, he suggests a probable team to visit Shanghai.

LINCOLNS HAPPY

Welcome Return Of Ash

The Lincolns were not so clever in mid-field, but they still retain a useful outfit. Ridley will continue to be the brains of the attack, and Higgins is an enterprising leader who can be expected to score a lot of goals. A welcome return was made by Ash, who, until his injury in the early part of last season, operated at left back. On Saturday he played in the pivotal position and was as good as ever. Once the newcomers have settled down to the requirements of first division football, the Lincolns will be able to take the field confident of meeting any team on equal terms.

KOWLOON WILL BE BETTER

Newcomers Proving Big Asset

Kowloon will definitely be stronger this year than they have been for the last three seasons. The big improvement noted is in attack, where the Knox brothers on either wing, and Elliott and the Whites inside are rapidly settling down into an effective attacking force. There also appears to be more stability in defence, which will be more pronounced when Bliss has taken up his position in the half back line.

Against the Medicals on Saturday, Kowloon played entertaining football, and no apparent weakness could be found in the team. They had lively opposition in the soldiers, who fully tested the capabilities of the peninsula team.

McInnes found the fairly fast wicket to his liking, and, timing the ball to perfection, made all the bowling look simple. He was especially severe on Smith, despatching his fast deliveries on the leg to the boundary almost every time. His most daring shot was a pull to the leg boundary when he literally picked the ball off his face. McInnes, however, displayed that he has a collection of sound strokes on both sides of the wicket. It was a confident innings betokening an efficient batsman with his eye in.

Frank Pereira's bowling was another thing, which must have greatly pleased the selectors. He maintained an impeccable length, plus accuracy for six overs, in the course of which he conceded eight runs for three wickets. On this form Pereira can legitimately claim to be the best fast bowler in the Colony, and a decided asset to any team.

On the whole the cricket last Saturday was much brighter than in any of the previous games. The apparent "Probables" all "came off" in their various ways, and made pretty light of the opposition.

OPENING BATSMAN PROBLEM.

Minu bowled very well indeed, but without much luck. If he continues to retain such form it will be extremely difficult to exclude him from the Interport side.

But the problem of finding a good opening pair has still to be solved. It has been suggested that the selectors have reached a stage when they feel it is impossible to find the two batsmen required, and are now adopting a method of elimination.

It will not be surprising to see Lieut. Williams given his place, although on current performances one feels a little in suggesting him as the ideal selection. His only claim is batsmanship and he has comparatively failed in this department in all the trials. His fielding has left much to be desired. Nevertheless it can be anticipated that he will recover something approaching true form during the next few weeks.

Good Bowling By Bonavia And Smith

K.C.C. PRACTICE MATCH

Lee, playing for Stapleton's team, carried his bat through the innings for a patient 66. It was the right type of innings with the early wickets falling fast, but later he hit out and with the aid of Sargent, who scored a very fine 6, helped to put the fairly respectable score of 181 for 9 wickets on the board.

Bonavia, bowled with skill, turning sharply both ways, he had the majority of batsmen in difficulty. He delivered a very fine

HOME FOOTBALL FULL OF SURPRISES

EXTRAORDINARY COLLAPSE OF SUNDERLAND

MILLWALL SHOCK BY LOSING AT HOME TO BRISTOL

English football on Saturday was just one big upset. So-called certainties became abject failures, and more than one proud record was lost.

Sunderland's amazing collapse against Derby County was just one of those inexplicable things, which we are constantly reminded are always likely to happen, but for which a cogent reason is seldom advanced. Then there was Tottenham's dismal display against the Vill at White Hart Lane.

Apart from the performances of West Ham and Brentford in the second division, London had a day of mourning. The Arsenal could only draw at Sheffield; Millwall lost their 100 per cent. record at New Cross, and to Bristol City of all teams! Charlton went to Bristol to engage the Rovers, and could only earn a goalless draw; Queen's Park Rangers were in the same boat with a journey to Luton.

St. Johnstone's defeat by three clear goals at Falkirk, and the partial failure of Clyde against Airdrie were other contributions to a day of bewildering results.

DETROIT WIN AND LOSE

LATEST BASEBALL RESULTS

New York, Sept. 23. In a long programme of double headers to-day, only New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians succeeded in winning both games.

Detroit Tigers lost the first against St. Louis Browns, but recovered to capture the night cap. The Giants also won their first leg against Boston Braves with ease, but conceded the following game.

Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics were unable to settle their second encounter, the match being called with the teams five runs apiece.

FEATURES OF VALLEY RACE MEETING

ABLE AMAZON'S BRILLIANT RECORD BREAKING RUN

HEY TOR WINS PICNIC BAY STAKES IN FINE STYLE

Although there were disappointments in the results, there was also some splendid racing seen at Happy Valley on Saturday, when another start to the season was made.

Chief features were Able Amazon's brilliant record-breaking run in the Corroborua Handicap, when she clipped a second off her previous five furlongs' record, and the victory of Hey Tor in the big event of the day, the Picnic Bay Stakes which carried huge sweepstake prizes.

B. A. Proulx and R. H. Charles were the most successful jockeys, each taking two winners past the post.

1.—Big Wave Bay Handicap.—Winner $500. Second $250. Third $150. For China Ponies, "C" Class. (Second Section). One mile. In Stakes One Mile.

who said

"I want unpainted kisses"

HE knew the minute she met him that she was the man of her dreams. But he did not seem attracted to her. It was her own brother who guessed what was wrong. "Stop using a lipstick that makes you look painted," he said. Then she switched to Tangee. It can't make lips look painted... it isn't paint.

DOORS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE

In the stick Tangee looks orange. But put it on and you'll see it change on your lips. It's a natural shade of rose not becoming to you. Instead of a greasy coating, Tangee becomes a very part of you. Hence is longer-lasting than ordinary "paint" lipsticks. Tangee's special cream base soothes and softens, prevents lips from drying or chapping. Also in theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched except to have a faded look. (Make the face seem older.)

PAINTED—Don't use that painted look. It's convincing and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, gives youthful appeal, and gives painted look.

Tangee Cream Rouge is really waterproof. Will not streak or wash away. Ideal for sports use. Its cream base protects your skin against drying or chapping. Makes Tangee Lipstick and like it changes to your individual coloring.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

BOOTS HADN'T, in and pretty, in her new-found isolation from the "gang," was very lonely. More often than not, when her father dozed fitfully in the porch swing, a small cur would slide up to the curb and the girl would call back softly, "I'm just going down to the Post Road for a few minutes."

Then she and Russ would be skimming the roads together. He would lock down at her and smile that slow smile of his and say softly, "How you coming, sweetness?"

And she would flash him a smile in return. She would be content with that. After that first night he had not touched her again and there was something in his control that plucked the girl unutterably. She had no chance now to play the sweet, equable, womanly role she had de-

CHAPTER XII

"Well, that will be about enough of that," Boots said to herself in the silence and calm of her own room. Russ Lund had kissed her and she had explained to him later, gently but firmly, that it simply wouldn't do and that all this was was to it.

She and Russ had had a "good talk" coming home from the shore. She would not have believed that she, big, square-shouldered, man could be so articulate. She was perfectly right, he had agreed. It wouldn't happen again. She was "darned sweet" and he wanted to be friends.

"I'm sorry I rather nicely," Boots told herself, peering at herself in the mirror in the pale of the pale electric bulb which swung errily from a green cord. She felt rather proud of herself on the whole. After all, Russ was definitely older and she had been judicious and mature and charming in the situation, had met it gravely and simply as a woman should. No, she didn't like "this paving about." It was all right if it happened to be "the real thing," but what she felt for Russ, she had explained carefully and with what she felt was just proper reserve, of regret of merely friendship.

A month ago she had not known that this tall, bronzed man with the unruly hair and the big, smiling mouth even existed. He had simply been part of the background along with the dipping sails, the swimmers, the iron tables on the club terrace. Now he had definitely come alive. She was conscious of him, his bigness and his strength, but they would remain friends, nothing more.

Just the same she couldn't help noting that in the mirror her eyes looked enormous, excited. The pupils were dilated. Her color, too, was high. She had a deepened wild red flush in either cheek. She leaned forward across the littered dressing table top with its jars and pin trays and torn envelopes to stare at herself in the glass, admiring. Why, she wasn't in love with him at all. It was just that his words, that brief, not-unpleasant moment when she had been crushed close in his arms had done something to her.

"Awake, I awake," murmured the girl to herself. Oh, all this was foolishness; she was only playing really. But it was nice to know someone admired you, thought you were beautiful, desirable.

She went to sleep with a little smile of contentment hovering about her lips. Of course she wasn't going to let Russ kiss her again, she told herself firmly. He would have to realize she simply couldn't consider him in that way. So it was perfectly all right.

But of course the thing wasn't settled as simply as that. The summer nights continued to be intruded of scent and sweet and Boots in her new-found isolation from the "gang," was very lonely. More often than not, when her father dozed fitfully in the porch swing, a small cur would slide up to the curb and the girl would call back softly, "I'm just going down to the Post Road for a few minutes."

Then she and Russ would be skimming the roads together. He would lock down at her and smile that slow smile of his and say softly, "How you coming, sweetness?"

And she would flash him a smile in return. She would be content with that. After that first night he had not touched her again and there was something in his control that plucked the girl unutterably. She had no chance now to play the sweet, equable, womanly role she had de-

To-night she was not unconscious of looking her best in the vivid brown and yellow organdie, the very frock she had worn to the fateful party at the yacht club.

It might as well get some good out of it," she had told her image defiantly. She wasn't going any place else and it was cool. She had brushed her yellow halo of curls with special care. Her small mouth, as just touched with a scarlet, ripe, just, this is our last ride together," she told him, smiling, as the car coasted down a brief grade. She made the effect she had counted on. The young man at her side said with flattered concern, "Why? What do you mean by that?"

My mother comes home to-morrow," Boots said, with a brief fluttering laugh in which nervousness and anxiety were mingled. "She's—she's terribly fussy. She'll think there's something serious about this. Our being friends."

He said something under his breath which she did not hear. The scent of the cigarettes he used clung to his rough, shabby tweed coat. His duck trousers were old, too, and many times washed, but to Boots to-night he seemed extraordinarily virile and handsome. He was a man, anyway, she told herself, and that was more than you could say for Johnny or even Harry Whitmore. They were only children. This man had been to Singapore and Port Said and Shanghai. He had shipped as a crew man on a fruit boat and cattle boat. He had seen the world.

"What did you say?" Her flower-like face was very close to his. Her small feet, in their shabby black-strapped slippers, were planted squarely on the floorboard, close to his big brogues.

"I said that was a rotten break," Russ told her slowly. "Well, it's been an awfully long time before now and maybe I'll be seen' you. I'm pushing off next week, anyhow."

A pang shot through her. She swallowed hard. With dry throat she managed the words, "Oh, where? Isn't this a surprise?"

"Not much," drawled the man. "I've been getting restless, hanging about here. I've got an offer to go down on a cattle place in Chile. Anything for a change."

Suddenly she felt that she could not bear it. Why, Russ, was her only real friend now. She saved up things to tell him—little things that made him widen his eyes, made him blink back his head and laugh reasonably. On the beach she'd been sitting near his life-guard station every day now, carelessly of the curious glances thrown their way. She hadn't minded Syl-via's gathering to herself the usual little sycophantic group as long as she had Russ to talk to. The days had passed quickly. People had looked inquisitively at the small, fair-haired girl with the body of a Tanagra figurine talking, quickly, earnestly to the squarely built young man with the "life guard" sign on his bathing suit. More often than not they had lapsed into a silence more intimate even than words.

"Why, why—I had no idea you were discontented here," Boots stammered quickly, feeling utterly at a loss. "I thought—I rather thought—"

She could not complete the sentence. Hot blood burned her cheeks and pounded in her temples. She must not, simply could not behave this way; it was ridiculous. What would he think?

He seemed not to notice anything. They were on the outskirts of New Martin now. There were lights and lamps instead of the pale moons of a lone country road.

"I have to be moving along," Russ said simply, easily. "Besides, there's no use me hanging around here any more. You'll be going back to your crowd any day now. You won't know I'm alive."

She checked on her denial. "How can you say such things? You've been a peach to me. I don't know how I would have got through this summer—"

Tears rose to her eyes, tears of self-pity and wounded vanity—yes, and something else. There was a lump as big as a baseball somewhere in her throat. This was what poets meant when they wrote of the heart's pangs. Why, she was feeling them now as surely and agonizingly as though some pressure were being brought to bear against her swift-beating human heart.

Russ brought the little car to a stop in front of a sweet shop. Lights gushed from the gayly decorated windows with their bon-bons in pink boxes, their trays of spilling red and green sourdoughs. Boots stared at the display apathetically.

"Want a drink?" "Oh, I don't—I don't think so." Other nights they had laughed at each other in the white heat of this small place across a shining white marble table-top while a youth in a soiled apron stepped down water tumblers and paper napkins and drank their orders. Just now the very thought of entering that bright, odorous place sickened her a little.

"Want me to bring one out?" All right, then, she would have a lemonade. As she sipped the tepid, sweet-sour mixture she regarded her escort over the top of the glass. Why had she never noticed before now really handsome he was? Breath-takingly, she realized that he had come to possess her imagination—it was Russ she looked forward to seeing by day, Russ who filled her night-time dreams.

Seemingly oblivious to any undercurrents of thought, perfectly willing to keep their friendship on the platonic plane, Boots herself had chosen only a short 10 days before, Russ took from her half-emptied glass.

"I love him," she told herself wildly. "And he doesn't care a thing about me. He's going away. What shall I do?"

LESSON SERMON.

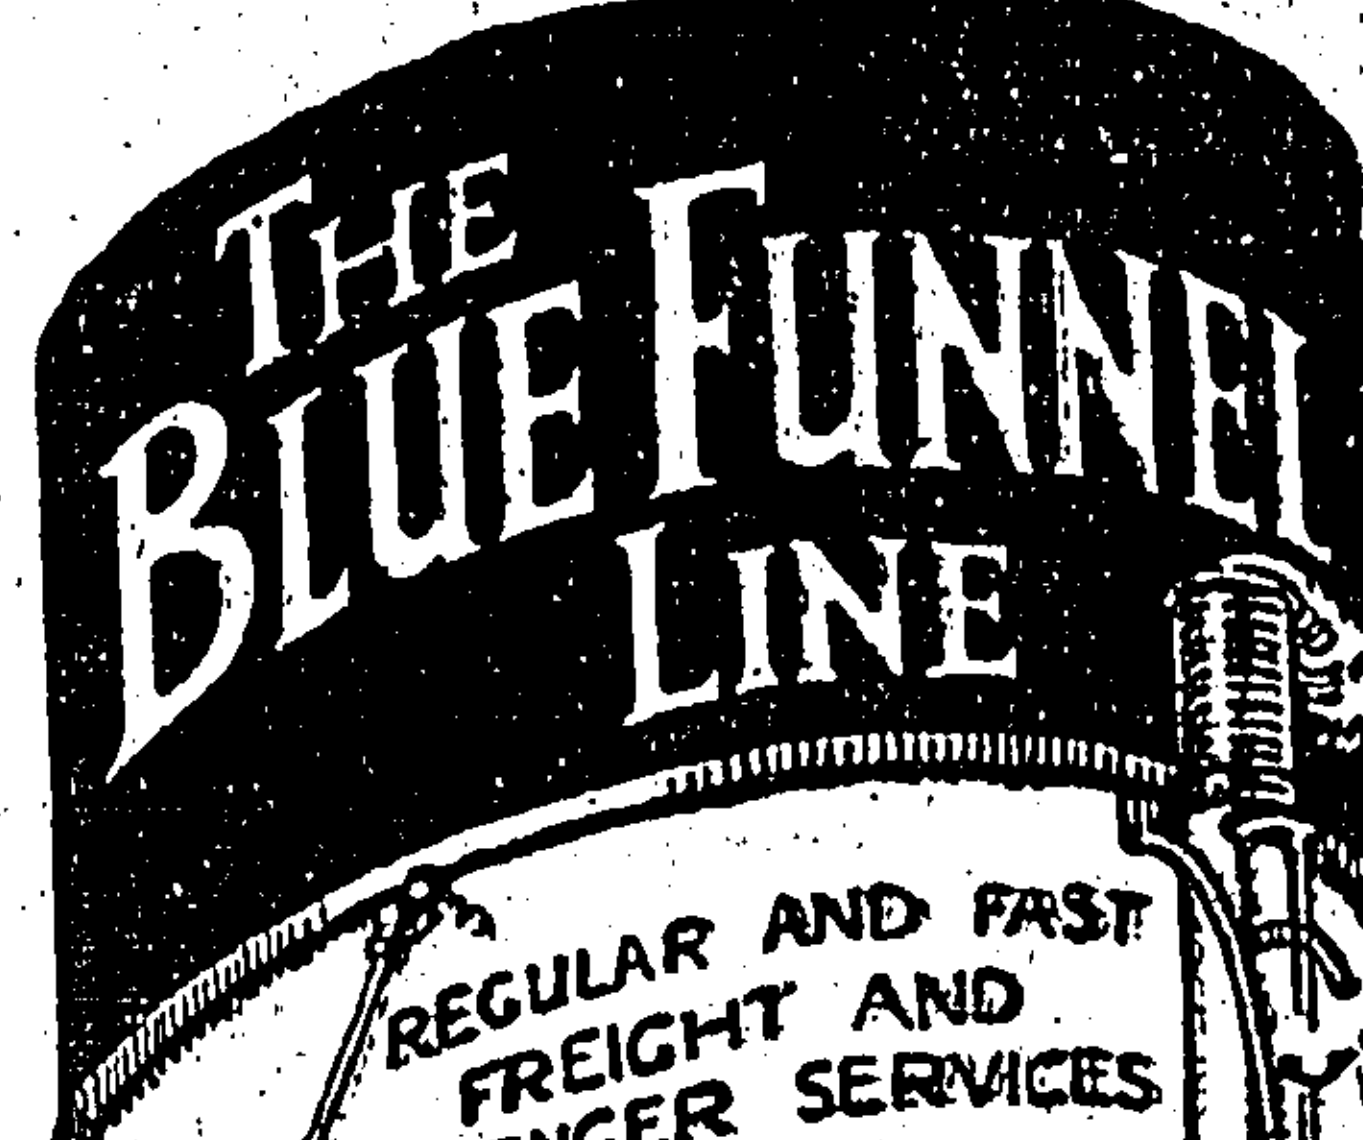

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob" (Psalms 114:7).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you" (Romans 8:5-9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Matter is not the vestibule of Spirit. Jesus reasoned on this subject practically, and controlled sickness, sin, and death on the basis of his spirituality. Understanding the nothingness of material things, he spoke of the flesh and Spirit as the two opposites—as error and Truth, not contributing in any way to each other's happiness and existence. Jesus knew, 'It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing' (P. 356).

VALIDATING OATHS.

FLAW IN CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

A ruling by the Chief Justice that, under the wording of Sub-section 702 (1) of the Code of Civil Procedure Ordinance, he has no power to issue a commission appointing a Commissioner of Estate Duty, has made it necessary for the drafting of an amending Ordinance, which will be brought before Legislative Council at its next meeting.

The amending Ordinance will also validate all previous commissions by previous Chief Justices issued to Commissioners of Estate Duty, and all proceedings taken under colour of such commissions.

Appointments of commissioners to administer oaths, etc., for the purposes of the law relating to Estate Duty, have been made by former Chief Justices under Sub-section 702 (1) of the Code of Civil Procedure Ordinance.

That sub-section reads as follows: "702 (1) The Chief Justice may, by a commission signed by him, appoint fit and proper persons to be commissioners to administer oaths and take declarations, affirmations and attestations of honour in the court."

The present Chief Justice has held that the words "in the court" in this sub-section qualify the words "to administer oaths" as well as the following words, and that he has therefore no power to issue a commission appointing a Commissioner of Estate Duty, who administers oaths outside the court, to be a commissioner for oaths.

The amendment of the Estate Duty Ordinance, which will be effected by the proposed Bill, obviates this difficulty.

FLIGHT FAILS

COBHAM FORCED DOWN AT MALTA

London, Sept. 22. Sir Alan Cobham and Squadron-Leader Helmore took off from Portsmouth at 6.32 a.m. to-day on their attempted 5,200 non-stop flight to India. They plan to refuel in the air at four points.

Their plane, the "Airspeed Courier," was not fully loaded with petrol when they took off, but they will take on more fuel from an air tanker off Selsey Bill. This will give sufficient petrol to reach Malta.

They hope to reach Karachi in 48 hours.

The air liner which fuelled Sir Alan Cobham's plane crashed in

LOCAL WEDDING

YOUNG COUPLE MARRIED AT THE CATHEDRAL

A wedding of great local interest was that solemnised at St. John's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon when Miss Lorna Margaret Tolan, the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Tolan, became the bride of Mr. Cyril Frederick Wood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Wood of Doncaster, England.

The Rev. H. W. Baines officiated and Mr. F. Mason played appropriate music at the organ.

Given away by her father, the bride was attired in a dress of white ring velvet, with a tulle veil trimmed with satin ribbon and pearls, held in place with a tulle of orange blossom and pearls. Her bouquet was of white Honoluli crocus and maiden hair fern.

In attendance as bridesmaids were the Misses Ellen (Pat) Anglow and Dorothy Tolan, whose dresses were of blue moire trimmed with pink rose-buds, with blue moire shoes to match. They wore pink and blue tiaras and carried bouquets of Honoluli crocus.

Little Miss Laureen Cleme was flower girl. The bride's mother wore a dress of grey moroccan trimmed with lace to match and carried a bouquet of African daisies.

The duties of best man were discharged by Mr. C. B. Easterbrook.

A reception was subsequently held at the Hongkong Hotel where the happy couple received their congratulations of their many friends. Later they left for Cape Peak, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's going away dress was of delphinium blue angel skin satin, brown hat and shoes with gloves and bag to match.

A field in Buckinghamshire and its four occupants were incinerated.

The Airspeed Courier is a low-winged, single-engined monoplane. The fliers were to refuel at Malta, Alexandria, Shiba and Basra.

Washington, Sept. 23. The Senate Munitions Committee announces that it will give Ambassadors and Ministers full details of the evidence received by the Committee, involving highly placed nationals of different countries in allegedly questionable munitions deals.

Japan's Imports.

Washington, Sept. 21. Evidence of the enormous increases of purchases by Japan of materials which could be put to use in warfare, was given by Mr. Tupper, chief of the Foreign Trade Statistics Department of the Chamber of Commerce, before the Senate Committee of Investigation of arms manufacture and export to-day.

He declared that Japan bought three bales of cotton lint in 1929 and 10,000 in 1933, while her scrap iron and steel purchases were 48,000 tons in 1931 and over half a million tons for the first six months of 1934.

There had also been large increases in America's exports of cotton lint, cottonseed fibre, aeroplane engines and sodium nitrate to Germany, he said.—Reuter Special.

LEAGUE FIGHT AGAINST DRUGS AND VICE

Geneva, Sept. 23. In the League Assembly the Fifth Committee to-day resolved to favour an international conference in the Orient, under League of Nations auspices, to deal with measures to prevent the traffic in women and children.

Mr. Victor Hoo, China's delegate on the committee, defended the Chinese attitude towards the drug traffic. He argued that large quantities of cocaine of European manufacture had been sold in Chinese territory. This, he contended, gave China grounds for complaint against Europe.

Further, Mr. Hoo alluded to the strict measures being taken by China to restrict the growth of poppy in the country.—Reuter.

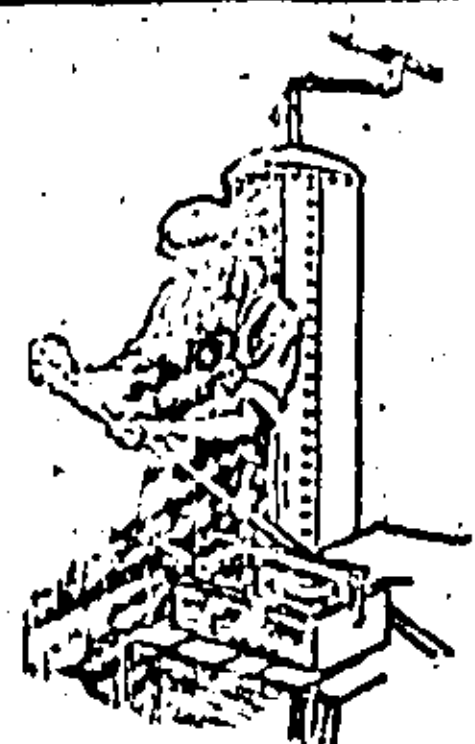

Two more opium addicts who could not get rid of their opium habit after a given period as required by the recently promulgated anti-opium law, paid the supreme penalty in Peking on Friday, says the Central News Agency. Three others found guilty of trafficking in opium were executed on Saturday.

LADY GUEST'S EVIDENCE IN PEAK PARTY CASE

"WE WANT BOY!" SHOUTED

SIR T. SOUTHOORN NOT MENTIONED

EXCESSIVE NOISE DENIED

There was again a crowded attendance of Europeans at the Central Magistracy this afternoon when the case was resumed in which G. W. Sewell, H. C. Meeke and A. L. Sullivan were summoned for making or permitting a noise calculated to interfere with public tranquillity at 286 The Peak on August 31.

Mr. H. K. Holmes, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, and Mr. D. B. Evans was for the defence.

Before the proceedings commenced, Mr. Hamilton asked if the China Mail representative was present, adding: "The next time the China Mail says I was assisted by Mr. Jenkin when I had merely offered him a seat on the bench as a courtesy, there will be trouble."

MRS. BERG'S EVIDENCE.

The first witness called this afternoon was Mrs. Sverre Berg, who was a member of the party on the night of the alleged offence. She stated that after dinner, at about 10.30 o'clock, the ladies of the party adjourned to the drawing room, leaving the gentlemen in the dining room.

While the gentlemen were in the dining room there was some singing and a few minutes later Mr. Sewell joined the ladies and put on the wireless, witness said.

Mr. Evans: "Could you hear that above the singing in the next room?"

Witness: Yes. Quite distinctly. Witness added that Mr. Sewell later gave an impersonation of a Chinese sing-song girl, and when asked by Mr. Evans how this was received, said it was very entertaining.

His Worship: Is that relevant? Mr. Evans: Yes, because here is a man trying to entertain his guests.

His Worship: But does it affect this case? Mr. Evans: Yes, absolutely.

INSPECTOR ARRIVES.

Mrs. Berg, continuing her evidence, stated that later in the evening Inspector Kirby arrived at the house and Mr. Sewell brought him in. The Inspector said: "One of the sub-inspectors has received a phone call from Mr. King and I have been told to investigate where the noise is coming from." The Inspector was then introduced to the party and sat down.

"REALLY LADY SOUTHOORN."

"We were all rather surprised," said Mrs. Berg, "that Mr. King could have heard us as he lives such a long way away. Inspector Kirby then said he thought it was really Lady Southorn who was complaining."

His Worship: He said that in your presence?

Witness: Yes.

Continuing, witness said, "I asked him if he thought we were very noisy and he said he had been waiting outside for twenty minutes before ringing the doorbell and had heard no noise really to complain about. When he left no further songs were sung."

Mr. Evans: What was your attitude towards this visit?

Witness: We were all very surprised and I was frightened. I did not know what it meant. Did you make any excessive noise when leaving?—No, I am quite sure we did not.

Did you hear the name of Sir Thomas Southorn shouted out?—No, I am quite sure of that.

I take it this was not the first party you have been to on the Peak?—No.

Did it strike you as being excessively noisy compared with others you have been to?—No, I did not.

"WE WANT BOY!"

While you were on the verandah, were there occasional shouts other than when you held good hands?—We did shout "We want boy" on two or three occasions.

MUELLER DOCTRINES RESISTED

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Sept. 24, 9.12 a.m.)

Berlin, Sept. 23.

Open rebellion on the part of 6,000 Evangelical pastors, representing nearly one-third of the entire protestant clergy of Germany, marked to-day's ceremonial enthronement of Reichsbishop Mueller, as head of the Nazi Evangelical Church.

While swastika banners, Hitler salutes and the tramp of Der Fuehrer's black-uniformed guards along the Cathedral aisles made a dramatic background for the Reichsbishop's enthronement, opposition pastors throughout the country were proclaiming to packed congregations, loyal to them, their determination to resist Dr. Mueller and his racial and political doctrines.

LINDBERGH'S FLY EAST

KIDNAPPING CASE SEQUEL

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, September 24, 10.15 a.m.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 23. Presumably in connection with the arrest and charging of Richard Hauptmann, the German mechanic held as a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh flew from here to-day bound for New York.

New Jersey is seeking to extradite Hauptmann on a charge of murder. Meanwhile he is being held on a charge of having received all or part of the ransom money paid by Colonel Lindbergh for the return of his child in March, 1932.—United Press.

wanted, did you shout so that he could hear you anywhere?

Witness: We shouted loud enough so that he could hear us if he had been in the kitchen.

And even if he had been asleep would it have been loud enough to wake him up?—No, I don't think it would have wakened him up if he had been asleep.

Mrs. Langston, of 287 The Peak, giving evidence, stated that her house was thirty feet away from No. 286 and she heard no noise after the guests arrived. She stated that on a previous occasion she had had a complaint from Lady Southorn for playing the piano during the afternoon.

SOPWITH WILL NOT APPEAL

RACE PROTEST DISALLOWED

CHALLENGER READY TO RACE

Newport, Sept. 24.

In a letter to the New York Yacht Club, following the refusal of the Race Committee to hear Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith's protest over Rainbow's alleged infraction of race rules on Saturday, the British challenger's skipper says:

"I regret that your Committee refuses to hear Endeavour's protest of yesterday owing to my not having complied with the very trivial technical formality regarding the time of protest flag-flying."

Mr. Sopwith later announced that he would race to-day and that he would not appeal.—Reuter.

COMMITTEE RULING.

Newport, Sept. 23.

Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith's protest that the America's Cup defender broke the rules of the race on Saturday, has been disallowed.

The Race Committee announced that the only reason for disallowing the protest was that Mr. Sopwith did not hoist his flag-signal immediately he was fouled.

It is believed protest was based on two points, that the Rainbow failed to give the challenger right-of-way at the start and that she failed to answer his luff at the mark and almost caused a collision.

Later. The Committee entirely ignored the question of fouls alleged by Mr. Sopwith, pointing out that the protest flag was not displayed until three hours after the alleged first foul and nearly two hours after the second.

Rule 45 requires that protest signals should be hoisted promptly.

HAS NO POWER.

The Committee explains that it has no power to sustain a protest which is improperly made.

In its own view of the facts surrounding the foul before the start of the race, if the Endeavour

COBHAM FLIGHT DISASTER

MISSING MECHANISM VITAL TO SAFETY

R.A.F. INVESTIGATION ASKED FOLLOWING MALTA CRASH

Malta, Sept. 23.

It is now disclosed that Sir Alan Cobham and Squadron Leader Helmore, who made a forced landing at the airport here at 6 p.m. to-day, probably flew all the way from England without the vital throttle control split-pin, the absence of which might have caused disaster at any point on the route.

The plane landed with only slight damage to her undercarriage and both occupants escaped injury.

GOLD BLOC ENTENTE

Economic Treaty Envisaged

Brussels, Sept. 23.

The possibility of an Economic Entente being formed between the gold standard nations is envisaged by M. Jaspar, the Belgian Foreign Minister, it is announced.

M. Jaspar is going to Geneva to-morrow to discuss the matter with the representatives of other gold standard countries.—Reuter.

NO RESTRICTION OF GOLD EXPORT

DR. H.H. KUNG GIVES OUT POLICY

Nanking, Sept. 24.

The Minister of Finance, Dr. H. H. Kung, announced to-day that China would welcome gold imports for safe-keeping savings or investment.

The re-export of gold, he declared, would not be restricted, as long as shippers could show a Customs certificate showing the time and amount of the metal imported.

He said that the uncertainty of monetary standards elsewhere had led many capitalists to inquire whether China was placing restrictions on the re-export of gold, and that his statement was prompted by these inquiries.—Reuter.

SIR F. DREYER'S PEKING VISIT

H.M.S. FALMOUTH OFF TO TANGKU

Welshpool, Sept. 24.

Admiral Sir Frederick Dreyer, Commander-in-Chief, and Lady Dreyer, together with the Naval Staff, sailed aboard H.M.S. Falmouth to-day for Tangku for the official visit to Peking.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British Minister to China, is expected to return to Welshpool on October 3.—Reuter.

Unheeding his plea that they were given to him by a friend, Tang Yuen, 24 years, a workman, was fined $25 with the alternative of one month's hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court, for having in his possession 80 Hongkong 10 pin tickets.

The fliers learned here that the first of the refueling ships for the Cobham-Helmore flight, crashed in Buckinghamshire after transferring its load, and its four occupants were burned to death.

Squadron Leader Helmore has called for an official written report from the Chief Technical Officer of the Royal Air Force, which will necessitate an inquiry into the mechanical preparations for the contemplated 5,200 mile non-stop flight from England to India.

It appears that Sir Alan Cobham only discovered that the throttle control was broken when they were flying ten miles out at sea from Malta, during the refueling process.

It was thanks to Sir Alan's decision not to lower the undercarriage in order to minimize the air drag that they were able to make land.

Their only damage in landing was to the undercarriage and the propeller, when they nosed over.

MISSING SPLIT-PIN.

Once on the ground, Sir Alan and Squadron Leader Helmore immediately set about an examination of the machine. The hole, where the vital split-pin should have been, was stuffed with grease and dirt.

They consequently drew the conclusion that the split-pin had never been in place since they left England.

REFUELING PLANE CRASH.

Altogether, the flight was disastrous. It cost four lives of the crew of the refueling plane which, having given the Cobham-Helmore machine its capacity as it neared the English coast, crashed into a field in Buckinghamshire. The four men aboard were burned to death.—Reuter.

SENATOR BORAH ATTACKS MONOPOLY

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, September 23, 11.15 a.m.)

Geneseo, Idaho, Sept. 23. In a speech in which he attacked monopolies of all sorts, Senator Borah, stormy campaigner of the middle West, to-day welcomed the determined fight by the Liberty League to preserve American Constitutional rights.

Those rights, some feared, were in jeopardy. Americans would never submit to despotism in politics or elsewhere, he asserted.

He criticised the League's emphasis on the importance of recognition of property rights.—United Press.

TYPHOON KILLS TWO THOUSAND

BRITISH WARSHIPS' WILD ADVENTURE

Tokyo, Sept. 24.

The Home Office announces to-day that the casualties in last week's typhoon have now been estimated at 2,064 killed, 13,365 injured and 258 missing.

It is almost certain that the missing must be counted among the dead.

The disaster is one of the worst ever to strike Japan and every seaport of any consequence was seriously affected. Even in Tokyo the damage was extensive.

The worst suffering was caused along the coast where heavy seas pounded inland nearly half a mile and swept away thousands of homes.—Reuter.

WARSHIP'S ADVENTURE.

Kobe, Sept. 24.

Although Kobe escaped the worst effects of the typhoon, a long length of coastline was washed over a quarter of a mile inland by enormous waves which smashed completely the pretty bungalow colonies of Uchida and Shioya.

A number of British and American residents had the narrowest of escapes.

The British destroyers Keppel, Verity, Wishart, Whitehall and Wild Swan, which were on their way to Kobe, received the typhoon warning and anchored in the lee of an island in the Inland Sea.

The destroyers spent a terrible night, and though they steamed full ahead and had the added support of their anchors from time to time they were forced backwards during Friday morning towards the land. All were in danger but H.M.S. Wishart.

"When the typhoon let up we were very close to the rocks. Then we steamed for miles through masses of wreckage for Kobe," naval men related.—Reuter.

WON'T EATTake Doctor's Advice
Results Will Surprise You

If your precious child won't eat without coaxing, is nervous and underweight... do what doctors the world over advise: Give him a little Castoria and you will see a marked improvement the first day.

Authorities have found intestinal absorption of poisons to be the cause of most child ailments. Even when the child's habits may seem regular, poisons seep through the system and do damage. The stomach is upset. Food does not digest properly. The nervous system loses its delicate balance. Nothing can correct this insidious condition quite as easily and naturally as Castoria. It tastes so good children beg for it. And it swiftly purges the little system of poisons. It settles the stomach, improves digestion and restores nerve-poise. Then Nature does the rest as only Nature can. Appetite for food quickly returns. Health is restored to normal. And as a result the child gains weight fast and becomes sturdy and strong.

Now take care of your child this safe, drugless way. Get a bottle of Castoria and try it. Results will delight you.

FILMLAND NEWSVigorous Reply to Boycott Threat*WRONG CAMPAIGN

Mr. Adrian Brunel, the well-known film director, has made the following statement:—

"The Very Rev. Canon Palmer calls upon churchgoers to boycott the cinema until films are so bowdlerised that they will cease to attract to their present extent.

"I would hesitate to say that he wishes to bring the cinema down to the same level of popular appeal as that of so many churches to-day, because that would be rude and unkind, and being a Christian I do try not to be rude and unkind. Of course, if I were 'very reverend' I might feel differently; I might then join Canon Palmer's movement or even Herr Hitler's. If I were only just 'fairly reverend,' I might suggest retaliation; I might suggest that cinema-goers boycott the churches until their teachings were more in accord with their Founder's. But only being an ordinary person, I suggest that Canon Palmer could employ his undoubted energy in a more Christian manner by campaigning against slums, armaments, aggressive nationalism, and the persecution of minorities; he might also do good work in distributing copies of the Sermon on the Mount to people in coloured shirts."

"CLEAN FILM No. 1"

"The World Moves On," has won the unique distinction of being awarded No. 1 "clean picture" certificate issued by Joseph I. Breen, of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

Breen, assistant to Will Hays, was recently appointed as the sole arbiter of the film industry on the question of clean pictures.

COLIN CLIVE SIGNED.

Colin Clive, a British star lost to England for some time, has been signed to a term contract at Warners' and the studio is now hunting for stories for him. At the moment he is co-starring with Virginia Bruce in "Jane Eyre."

Clive first became internationally famous for his portrayal of Captain Stanhope in "Journey's End." Universal then engaged him for the name part in "Frankenstein."

FILM DEBUT.

Robert Lorraine, the distinguished British actor, is to make his Hollywood debut in the Fox production "Marie Galante." It is the story of a French wail who drifts to the Panama Canal zone, becomes involved in the international espionage system and is killed.

Ketti Gallian, the French actress, will play the title role, with Spencer Tracy opposite her. Robert Lorraine's role is comparatively small, but he was anxious to gain film experience before carrying out his long-cherished plan to bring to the screen Rodand's tragic-comical romance, "Cyrano de Bergerac."

BUSTER KEATON FILM.

Arrangements have just been concluded for Buster Keaton to star in a British film which, it is understood, will be made at Wembley. Keaton has just completed a picture in France.

Production at Wembley will start almost immediately with Diana

FRUIT AND WALNUT BREAD

TAKE one lb. flour, ½ lb. currants, ½ lb. sultanas, four oz. shelled walnuts, six oz. sugar, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, two eggs, ½ pint milk.

Mix flour, currants, sultanas, walnuts, sugar, and baking powder very thoroughly. Beat eggs and milk together, and add to mixture, stirring till dough becomes soft. Grease two loaf tins and put half the dough in each, bake for one hour in a hot oven. If only one loaf is required halve all the ingredients.

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.

R. C. Sheriff, the British author and playwright, who recently sailed for Universal City on a long-term contract, has been assigned to do the screen plays of the two Dickens productions shortly to go before the cameras at the Universal studios—"Great Expectations" and "The Mystery of Edwin Drood."

The second of these two assignments sets him a hard task. Dickens did not finish writing "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" before he died, so R. C. Sheriff has not only to adapt that part of the book which was written by Dickens, but to provide an ending that will be acceptable to the millions of Dickensians all over the world—and to the general public, who may also have their own ideas on the matter. The task is complicated by the fact that Dickens left the book in a very incomplete state, with no indication as to how he intended the mystery to be solved. In fact, it was thought by his friends at the

PEKINESE NO
TOY DOG*REALLY SPORTING ANIMAL

The "Pekie" is nowadays by far the most popular of the "toy" breeds, and the Kennel Club statistics show that the number of Pekies registered at the Club during the past year far exceeds the total of all the ten other "toy" breeds put together.

That this is so is not due merely to the fact that the little dog from China is highly ornamental. One always feels that the term "toy" applied to so many varieties of "allant little dogs does them less than justice. Many of the "toy" breeds are highly useful members of canine society, and especially is this the case with the Pekinese.

He is as good a burglar alarm as a dog thrice his size. Many of his kind are keen and efficient as any terrier at a little job of ratting, and one of his earliest admirers, Lord John Hay (who was present at the sacking of the Summer Palace in Peking in 1860, and brought some of the first specimens to England) testified to the sporting proclivities of some of his Pekies 40 years ago, when he said that they showed "a good average aptitude at the drug-hunt."

He is remarkably adept at hurdling, too, and anyone who has seen a slow-motion film of a Pekinese taking a hurdle will agree that for sheer beauty of movement this little dog is unsurpassed by any other breed. And to show that he can be just as much of a mascot as any of his bigger brethren, there are whisperings of ridged hen-roosts and plantations.

Many a Pekinese will foot it with the best of human pedestrians on a fifteen mile walk. A great point in their favour is that they are perhaps the longest lived of all breeds. It is not unusual to find a Pekie "full of beans" at twenty, and this is equivalent to a hundred and forty years in a human being.

REFLECTION BY MIRRORS*NEW SYSTEM OF FILM PROJECTION

The little news theatre opened by British News Theatre, Limited, at Waterloo Station is using a system of film projection which is new to this country.

The new building, although high, has a small floor area with seats for just over 250 persons. The usual method of film presentation could not be adopted, because the image could not be thrown directly on to the screen. The principle of the Innes Projection System, which has been installed, embodies the reflection of the image from a screen—which is not visible to people in the auditorium—on to a large mirror. The "false" distance gained by this method makes it possible to bring the front row of the seats up to within a few feet of the mirror-screen. Even so there is no objectionable feeling of nearness or eye strain, as might be expected, because the mirror is not focused while watching the performance—one looks beyond it.

It is claimed that the system gives greater depth to the image, almost a pseudo-stereoscopic effect, and that there is a considerable improvement in the quality of coloured films. One of the chief advantages is that there is no distortion from either side of the house.

time of his death that the great novelist himself had not then made up his mind on the subject!

R. C. Sheriff, who, of course, is the author of "Journey's End," adapted H. G. Wells's "Invisible Man" and John Galsworthy's "One More River" for Universal. He is also the author of "A Trip to Mars," which Universal owns and which may be put into production when Sheriff has completed his two Dickens assignments.

Archbishop Of Canterbury As Labour's Ambassador

NOTABLE WORK IN SLUMS

GREAT SYMPATHY WITH MASSES DR. COSMO LANG

BY MILTON BRONNER

While it has always been true that cats could look at kings, the workingman generally has found it difficult to get a hearing in the high places. That's because cats can't embarrass the throne with urgent and unusual requests for assistance or succour.

Circumstance, however, has given British labour one spokesman who has free access to the heads of the government, the privy councils and even the court of St. James—a man who is an able pleader, a superb diplomat and a qualified statesman. That spokesman, friend and staunch ally is Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, whose views are accepted by a greater audience than those of any other person except the royal family and the prime minister.

As the head of the Church of England, his sermons, speeches and epistles to the press are regular items of important news; and the effectiveness of his pronouncements can be judged by the fact that a single letter to the press undid the results of several months of anti-Jewish propaganda.

He has been a strenuously successful career. He is a Scot, born into a Presbyterian family, his father being Moderator of the Church of Scotland and Principal of Aberdeen University. He studied for the bar at Glasgow and Oxford Universities. Then, suddenly at the age of 26—he was born in 1864—he took Holy Orders in the Church of England.

His first church job was that of curate in Leeds in the slum parish. Ten years later he was Bishop of Stepney, in one of the poorest districts of London. His experiences at Leeds and in Stepney made a life-long impression upon him and he has ever been a friend of the poor working man.

CHAPLAIN TO QUEEN.

In a few years he got his chance to show it in resounding fashion. He had been made chaplain to Queen Victoria and became Archbishop of York in 1908. As such, he had a seat in the House of Lords. In November, 1917, in the most critical period of the World War, some of the effects peers had been making supercilious remarks about the unrest among the labouring classes. Up rose the Archbishop of York to say:

"Vast numbers from the overcrowded houses in the slums came forward with the greatest readiness to help their country to which apparently they owed so little. The workers will rightly demand that pre-war conditions shall not be restored. Having borne the greater part of the strain and sacrifice of war, they are determined the rewards of their labour shall be adequate."

"The first cause of unrest is the unequal distribution of rewards in industry. The second cause is the dehumanizing of industry, which leads the worker to feel that he is but a cog in the machine, liable to be scrapped like the machinery he attends. It is a commonplace that industrial peace depends upon labour and capital joining together, but it is mockery to speak of partnership when labour is denied any real controlling voice in the settlement of conditions of work. They resent this Prussianizing of industry."

AHEAD OF ROOSEVELT.

It was a regular Franklin Roosevelt speech—delivered by the prelate 15 years ago. Serving his country, Dr. Lang made war speeches in many of the towns of the industrial north of England, to the Grand Fleet, to the sections of the army at the front. Then in 1918 he went to the United States. He spoke to the American soldiers at Camp Upton, to gatherings of American business men, to packed audiences at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and Trinity Church in New York City. It was not his only connection with the United States. In the spring of 1931 he made a tour of the Mediterranean and to Palestine as the guest of Mr. J. P. Morgan on the latter's palatial yacht, Corsair.

In 1928 he received his final and crowning step-up—he was made Archbishop of Canterbury. Incidentally, he is the first bachelor head of the church since 1707. And he's no old fogy, this 70-year-old bachelor. When others "grouse" about the new after-the-war generation, the Archbishop stops forward and says:

"I like the frankness, fresh vitality and curiosity of the new generation."

SUNDAY MOVIES.

Two years ago there was up in the cinema a picture which was

Dr. Cosmo Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury.

permit communities to have movies open on Sundays if they chose. Many churchmen and laymen fought it. Dr. Lang supported it, saying:

"People go to church because they want to. If there be any who do not want to, but go because there is no other comfortable place, I doubt whether their presence is an acceptable act of worship. There is no proof that the cinema prevents people attending public worship. There is no use arguing people should spend a quiet evening at home. How can families, confined in one or two rooms find any rest or recreation there? The result is the older people go to the 'pub' and the younger ones to the streets—a great source of evil."

He has expressed the same common sense British view on the necessity of disarmament, upon Germany's refusal morally to disarm, upon the vast importance of the press and films.

ATTEMPTED FORGERY

PRISON SCANDAL DENIED

Statements were made recently by the Home Office and the Prison Commissioners regarding allegations that a prisoner in Pentonville had been detected in printing a number of forged documents and that several prison officers acting in collusion with him had been summarily dismissed.

The Home Office stated that a prisoner at Pentonville Prison was recently discovered misusing the printing plant for the purpose of printing Board of Trade certificates for cooks. He was reported and dealt with according to rules. All the statements regarding the dismissal of prison officers and hastily summoned meetings of Prison Commissioners were devoid of foundation.

Deadly loss of life and pitiful suffering of cattle in the Western United States are results of the ex-

CENTRAL AIRPORT ON THE THAMES

LONDON'S SCHEME SAVES VALUABLE HOURS OF COMMERCE

London, Sept. 21. London's Old Man River, the Thames, is going to become air-minded in the near future.

With the speeding up of air services in Great Britain, plans are nearing completion for making the Thames the site of the first centrally situated airport in the heart of the British capital. The site of the proposed landing stage for giant airliners is within a stone's throw of the famous Traitors' Gate of the Tower of London through which political prisoners were brought by barge for execution in the past.

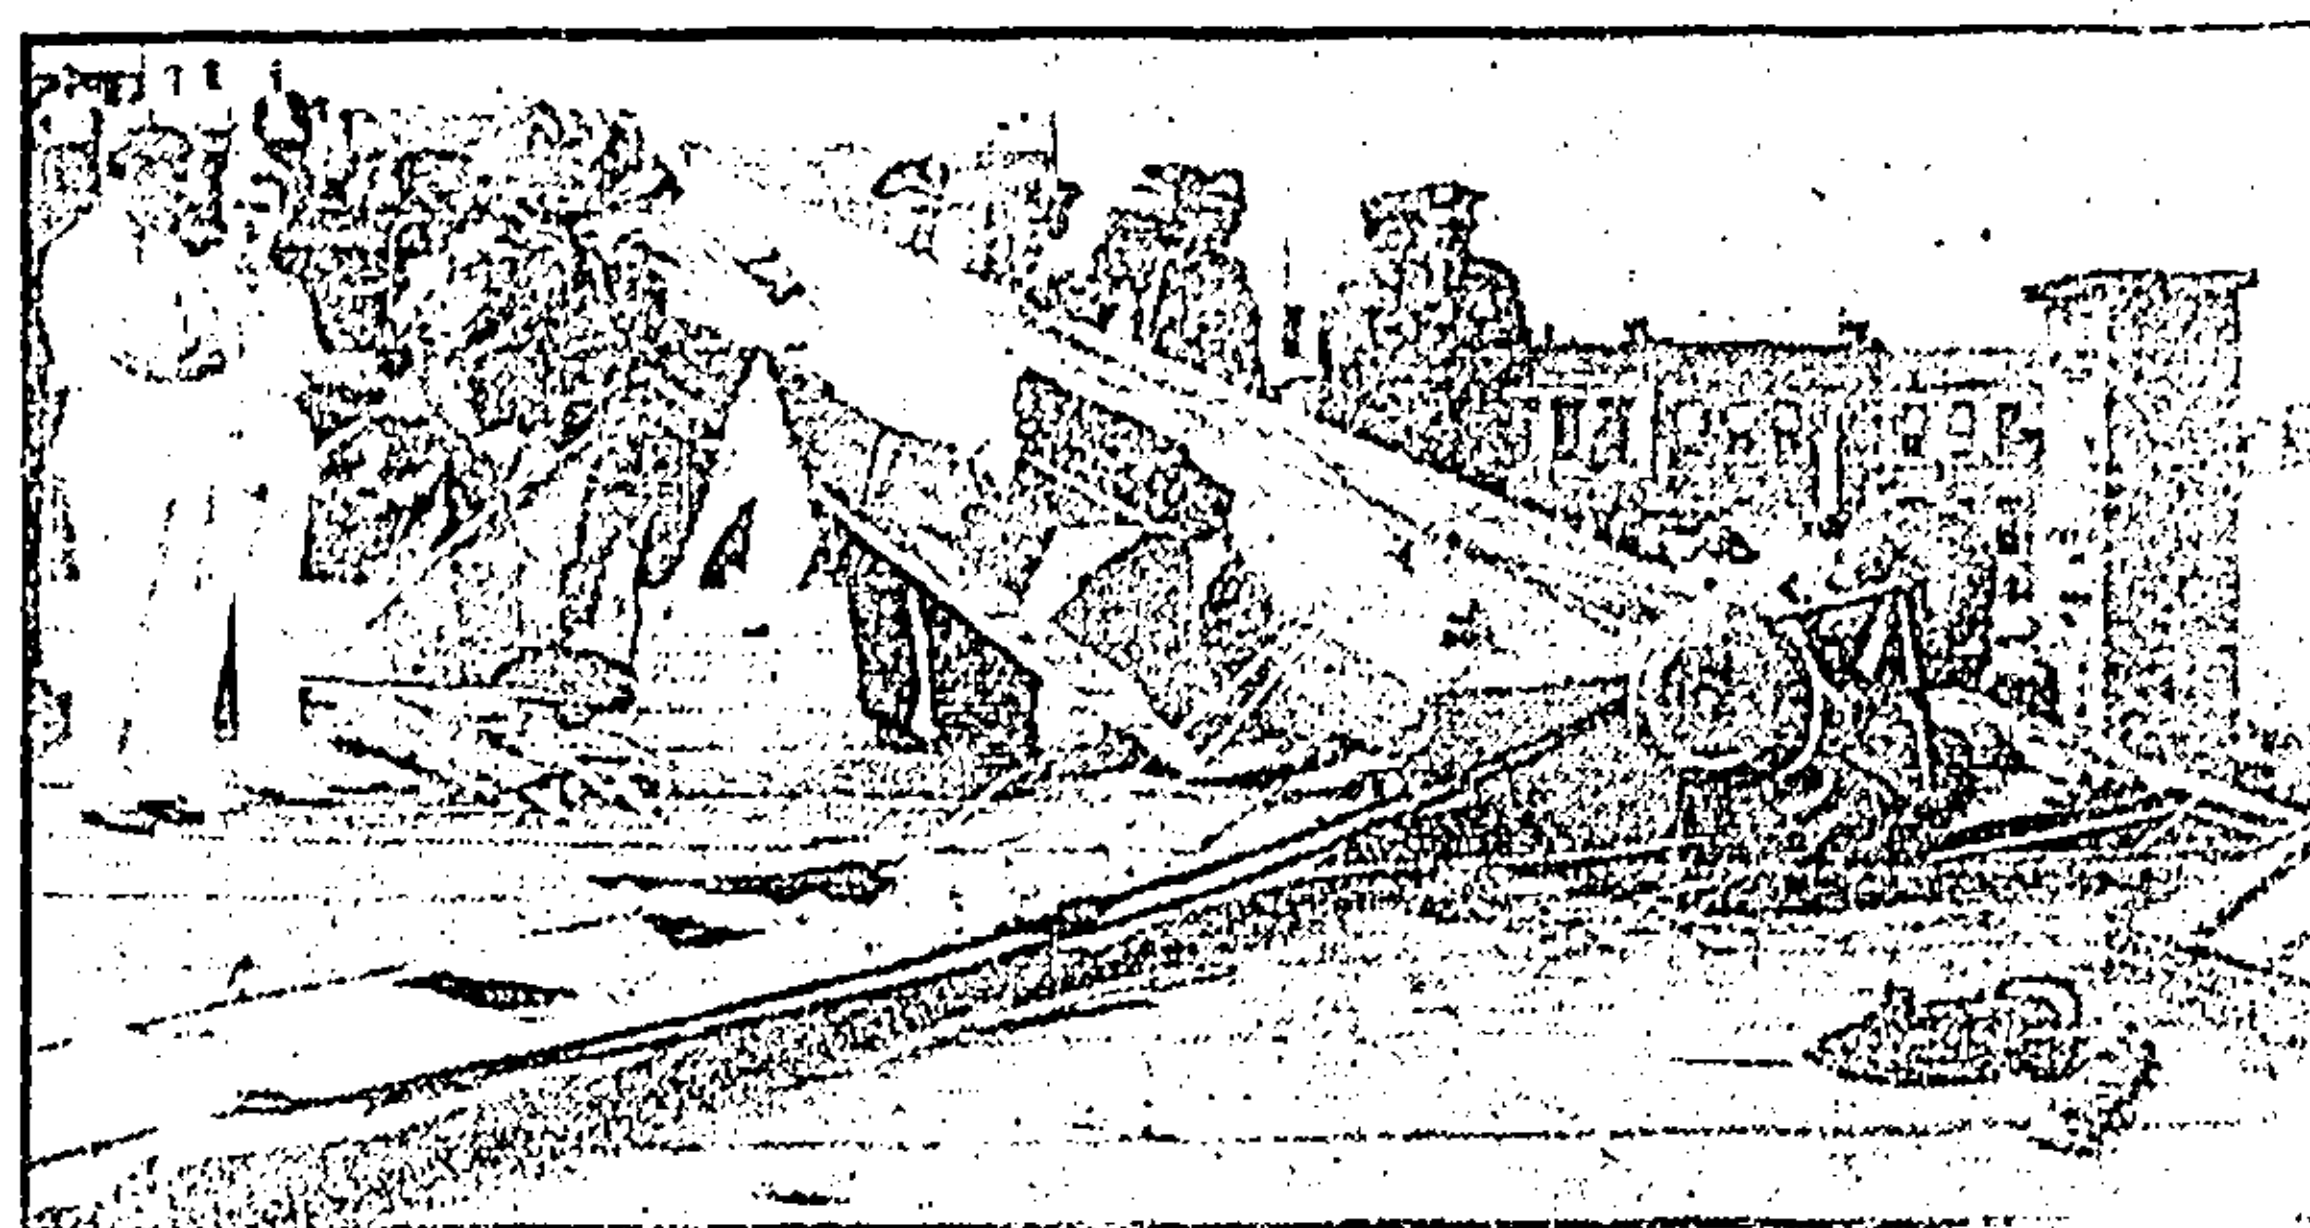

The main object of the scheme is to shorten the time taken by air between the centre of London and other European capitals. Speedy air connection with the heart of the metropolis has also become imperative with the development of London as the hub of Great Britain's own rapidly growing internal air lines. Although the city is already ringed with a circle of airports on its outer fringe, the nearest is from 40 to 45 minutes distant by road from the business centre and the West End.

OTHER CAPITALS.

Other European capitals are much better situated in this respect. For example Le Bourget airport is about a half-an-hour by road from the heart of Paris. Berlin's chief airport at Tempelhof is only fifteen minutes from the business centre.

The scheme now being worked out provides for the creation of a huge landing stage for airliners over the Thames itself and on the site of existing warehouses fronting the river between London Bridge and the Tower Bridge. The whole area has been thoroughly surveyed in recent months, and

Rehearsing for a war combat demonstration that might impress General Chang with his ability as a military pilot cost the life of Wong Ou-wah, Chinese aviation student, when his plane crashed to the roof of a house in Brooklyn, N.Y. The disaster took place after the propeller of the room-mate's plane clipped off the tail of Wing's ship.

At the office of the Prison Commissioners it was learned that the prisoner was a convict engaged in the prison printing shop, and that he was detected in an attempt to forge a Board of Trade certificate purporting to certify the credentials of a cook. The man used prison type, but his effort was described as "crude and incomplete." On being discovered by a warden he was subjected to disciplinary action by the Governor under prison regulations. There was no truth in the statement that the Prison Commissioners were still sitting at Pentonville investigating the matter.

It is expected that complete details of the plan will be published shortly.

ENORMOUS COST.

It is estimated that the cost of buying up the land and constructing the landing platform with adjoining runways would amount to at least $5,000,000.

Owing to the restricted space available for such an airport it is thought likely that its use would have to be limited to airplanes fitted with wheel-brakes and able to land at relatively low speeds. This, however, would probably be no serious handicap to British air lines. Even the largest machines in use on the London-Paris service can alight fully loaded at about 50 miles an hour on short landing runs.—United Press.

Painted Portias Of Paris

TURMOIL AT THE COURTS

Paris—The Paris Bar is in a turmoil. Elderly barristers and judges are really disturbed by the growing attractiveness of the women lawyers. It was bad enough to be obliged to suffer the encroachment of the fair sex on the Law Courts preserves.

Year by year the invasion has continued, and now, according to the complaints of their masculine colleagues, the girls contrive to defeat the austerity of their black robes by all the well-known artifices of their sex. They use their charms to collect briefs and win cases, and at the same time destroy the peace of mind of impressionable judges and barristers. In fact they have become much too alluring.

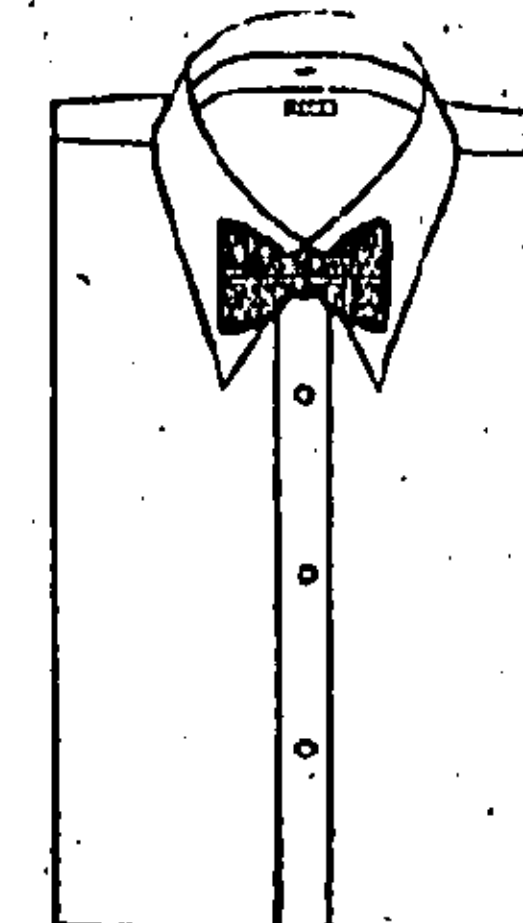

Alarm is felt at the daring with which these fascinating and painted Portias accoutre their attractiveness. There is criticism of the dainty red, blue or white shoes which flash gaily beneath a black toga; of painted fingernails showing against bundles of papers waved in the air; of beads and bracelets and other bangles of powder-puff and lipstick flaunted at every moment. And then, it is complained, an utterly unbuttoned robe exposing a bit of coloured silk or feminine skin, is apt to cause the attention of the court to wander from the case in hand.

The other day a judge noticed that the pretty blonde pleading before him was the same young woman who, only a week before, had appeared in the same court as a brunette.

"Something must be done," the male members of the profession are saying, "to check this tendency. The dignity of the law must be upheld."

So the authorities are being asked to make stricter regulations in this and

BIG MILITARY TATTOO

ARRANGEMENTS WELL IN HAND

Arrangements for the Military Tattoo which is to be held at Causeway Bay on November 1, 2 and 3 are now well in hand and preliminary rehearsals by several of the units taking part have already been held. The show promises to be one of the most spectacular ever held in the Colony and no effort is being spared to make it so.

The Tattoo will be opened on the first day by H.E. the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Barrett, on the second day by Commander Frank Elliott, and on November 3 by H.E. the Governor, Sir William Peel.

Tickets are already on sale at Moutrie's, together with car park tickets, which are issued at a cost of $1 per night or $2 for the three performances.

The organising committee wish to draw the attention of the public to the necessity of arriving before 8.30 p.m., the hour fixed for the commencement of the performance, as late comers will be obliged to leave their cars some distance from the ground.

The main entrance will be at the end near the French Hospital and for car owners at the rear of the existing stand on the Caroline Hill side. Car parking facilities will be provided close to the ground.

DESPERATE BREAK

CONVICTS USE PISTOLS MADE OF SOAP

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 23. Using fake pistols made of soap, coated with shoe polish, two confederates of the late John Dillinger attempted to escape from prison, but without success.

The prisoners were Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley. Both were confined in the "Death Row" in the Ohio penitentiary. The guards responded to their bold challenge by shooting both of them. Makley died later, and Pierpont is in serious condition.—United Press.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

CHUENHUA CHINESE GUILTY OF HIGH TREASON

Tientsin, Sept. 23. The local Court Martial to-day passed the death sentence on eleven persons who were recently arrested at Chuenhua District on a charge of high treason.

It will be recalled that their arrest was effected when a reactionary organ was raided by the Chinese police in that district.—Central News Agency.

VALIDATING OATHS.

FLAW IN CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

A ruling by the Chief Justice that, under the wording of Sub-section 702 of the Code of Civil Procedure Ordinance, he has no power to issue a commission appointing a Commissioner of Estate Duty, has made it necessary for the drafting of an amending Ordinance, which will be brought before the Legislative Council at its next meeting.

The amending Ordinance will also validate all previous commissions by previous Chief Justices issued to Commissioners of Estate Duty, and all proceedings taken under colour of such commissions.

Appointments of commissioners to administer oaths, etc., for the purposes of the law relating to Estate Duty, have been made by former Chief Justices under Sub-section 702 (1) of the Code of Civil Procedure Ordinance.

That sub-section reads as follows: "702 (1) The Chief Justice may, by a commission signed by him, appoint fit and proper persons to be commissioners to administer oaths and take declarations, affirmations and attestations of honour in the court."

The present Chief Justice has held that the words "in the court" in this sub-section qualify the words "to be commissioners" as well as the following words, and that he has therefore no power to issue a commission appointing a Commissioner of Estate Duty, who administers oaths outside the Court, to be a commissioner for oaths.

The amendment of the Estate Duty Ordinance, which will be affected by the proposed Bill, obviates this difficulty.

AN UNLICENSED PRESS

NUMEROUS LOTTERY TICKETS SEIZED

Heavy sentences were imposed upon Hui Hin-Chik, 30 years of age, unemployed, when he appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy on Saturday, in answer to four charges: (a) unlawful possession of a printing press without an appropriate licence, (b) printing lottery tickets, (c) keeping a common gaming house, (d) possession of lottery tickets.

Sergeant C. Foynt said that defendant was arrested at 232, Lai Chi Kok Road, second floor, on September 21, and in the flat they found a printing press, for which defendant had no licence, and a large quantity of 50 p.m. lottery tickets.

Defendant pleaded guilty to all four charges and was sentenced to a total of five months' hard labour with the alternative of a total fine of $500.

DONOR OF STONEHENGE TO THE BRITISH NATION

London, Sept. 22. The death has occurred of Sir Cecil Herbert Edward Chubb, 1st Baronet of Stonehenge.—Reuter.

Sir Cecil, who was 58 years of age, will be remembered as the donor of Stonehenge to the nation. He was educated at Cambridge University, and was J.P. for Salisbury. He was called to the Bar, Middle Temple, in 1907, and was created 1st Baronet of Stonehenge in 1919. He leaves a widow, one son and heir, John Corbin Chubb, and one daughter.

IRISH RIFT.

GENERAL O'DUFFY LEAVES UNITED PARTY

Dublin, Sept. 22. General O'Duffy has resigned the Presidency and membership of the United Ireland Party, together with the leadership of the Blue Shirts, and is succeeded in the respective positions by the former President of the Irish Free State, Mr. Cosgrave, and Commandant Cronin.

The step follows General O'Duffy's acute differences with other members of the party over collection of land annuities and General O'Duffy's policy of fostering the Blue Shirt organisation in Northern Ireland.—Reuter.

AERIAL WARFARE OF THE FUTURE

Mr. Baldwin's famous speech on the danger from the air has received terrible corroboration from an authority on aerial warfare. A grim picture of the horrors of the next war was painted by Mr. Anthony Fokker, the famous Dutch aeroplane designer in the course of a recent interview. "The most appalling thing about the next war," he said, "is that no country will really be in a position to defend itself sufficiently against modern air attacks. The attacks will take place like lightning. Large squadrons of aeroplanes, probably amounting to many hundreds, will swoop down on the enemy country to get the first blow in. They will fly very high, out of sight above the clouds, or else very low, regardless of the risk, and they will attack with high-explosive and incendiary bombs. Although these attacks will, of all, be aimed at military objects, they will at the same time bring disaster to the civil population. Imagine London being attacked by a ruthless fleet of 200 or 300 modern bombers dropping their incendiary bombs in hundreds of places simultaneously." Mr. Fokker is an expert who knows exactly what he is talking about. It was his machines during the War which constituted a great part of Germany's air strength and he is still engaged in designing and building aeroplanes. He says there is no effective defence against air attack. He further tells us that a first-class civil aeroplane is basically very little different from the high-powered war aeroplane and points out that his own latest model can carry six tons which might include two tons of bombs and can fly at a speed of nearly 200 miles per hour. That is to say, any country in which civil aviation is highly developed will be able to produce at short notice a strong military air force without having technically transgressed any armament limitation agreement. The moral is obvious. Since no air force, however efficient, can prevent the man-in-the-street from being bombed or his city from being destroyed, every Government must turn its attention at once from plans for re-arming to plans for strengthening the collective peace system. In the internationalisation of civil aviation, the abolition of private armament manufacture and the creation of an international police force, lies the only hope of safety for the soldier and the civilian alike. Mr. Fokker's picture of aerial warfare is a final answer to those experts who claim that increased armaments are necessary for national defence.

NOTES OF THE DAY

FOLLOW THE LEADER

Twenty years ago and less, the catch-cry was "Democracy." For this fine principle, nations went to war. To perpetuate a system of self-government, the peoples of the world laboured painfully and spent prodigiously. The inspired leaders did not stop to count the cost. The day of autocracy was passed, they said, and a new era dawned in which the people would rise triumphant to fulfil a splendid destiny. The road led through revolution, and to what? To-day one may see the consequence of political unrest and the destruction of the old order in the amazing bureaucratic erections which enthroned the new rulers, the dictators. Revolution brought to Russia her Stalin, to Italy Mussolini, to Germany Hitler. These are bright examples of the trend, indicating a tendency of the mass to shift to the shoulders of some super-man the burden which it fears itself to carry. Nor is the movement localised. Russia, Germany and Italy are merely good examples. There are others, Turkey, Poland, Spain, periodically, and some would have it that America is playing its old game of "Follow the Leader." There are some who insist that China, too, will have her dictator shortly. It is not for an unskilled observer to criticise, but no man can take offence at a question: Where does this new road lead? Though these great world figures be superior to the common run in the attributes of leadership, super-men though they may be, they cannot live for ever. And the question must eventually arise as to who will succeed them. Has Italy a man to-day prepared to step into the office of Signor Mussolini? It remains to be seen and meanwhile no man can answer one way or another. There was only one Napoleon.

RADICAL OFFER

These members of society who exercise an influence upon the conduct of public affairs by the right of free speech, through the medium of a free press, and particularly by the free and untrammelled use of the ballot, are commonly said to enjoy political equality or, at any rate, equality of political opportunity. However unequal may be the distribution of material wealth among the citizens of such a nation, there is at least a widespread distribution of political power on "an equalitarian basis." It is probable that only a very insignificant few in any community would deliberately surrender their political rights in return for the gift of economic equality. Nearly everybody desires to see a more equitable distribution of goods, but what nation would surrender the right to elect its own rulers and dismiss them at will, the right of organisation for political action, the right to criticise the government of the day, the ancient right of petition, and all merely for the purpose of getting rid of economic inequality? Nevertheless such is the bargain which revolutionary radicals offer in all seriousness to their fellow citizens. The planned economy of the revolutionaries in its very nature, as conceived by its advocates, is a slave economy. The revolutionaries themselves, however unwilling they may be to dwell upon this fact or to encourage others to discuss it, make no attempt to deny that under the proposed planned economy the individual will be required by the bureaucrats of the new era to do his day's work in this factory rather than that, to serve the State in whatever field of effort is chosen for him, to sacrifice his own prejudices and predilections and bring them into line with the opinions of those who have contrived to obtain political control of the economic activities of himself and his fellows.

KIND BUREAUCRACY

The revolutionaries say, of course, that all of this regimentation will be tenderly and benevolently managed by the kind-hearted and humane bureaucrats, that it will be done with the idea of putting square pegs into square holes, and thus making everybody contented and useful; but they make no effort to deny that whether the bureaucrats in office at the moment are kind-hearted or not, the process of regimentation must inevitably go on, that there is no escape from it under the planned economy of socialism. They admit, though with reluctance, that they desire to inaugurate and carry out a planned, and therefore a centrally-directed economy, that is to say an economy in which the citizens are deprived of their political rights—a slave economy. It is clear that if such an alternative were placed before him, that of political equality accompanied by economic inequality, as contrasted with political slavery, the ordinary British citizen will certainly not choose the latter.

TREATY ACHIEVEMENTS AT GENEVA

A surprisingly large number of treaties have been registered with the Secretary of the League of Nations, since it began its work in 1920.

A report which has just been made public indicates how active diplomats have been in the past 14 years, and how faithfully they have followed the rule which calls for the submission of their agreements to the international organisation.

Have there been "secret" accords among members of the League? It is sometimes suggested that there have been, but if so they do not possess legal validity.

It is revealed that no fewer than 3,428 treaties and international engagements have been registered, 240 last year, 218 in 1933, and 264 in 1932.

Among the treaties registered in 1934, there is one general political treaty, namely, that concluded between Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia; five treaties of non-aggression concluded with the Soviet Union; 18 treaties for arbitration, conciliation and pacific settlement of disputes; two treaties of peace and friendship; three treaties concerning general relations, and seven conventions concerning consular relations and conditions of residence have also been concluded in the past year.

Thirty-four treaties have been registered in 1934 under the heading of judicial and extradition conventions; and in the category of delimitation of frontiers, frontier traffic and similar questions, nine treaties have been registered, all between European countries.

As in previous years, the greatest number of treaties registered have been economic, financial and taxation conventions, namely, 34 concerning special problems and 63 more general in character.

Six transit conventions, 13 aerial navigation conventions, 15 conventions concerning postal, telegraphic and telephonic relations, and two conventions on tonnage measurement have been registered.

The other conventions deal with social, labour and health questions, waterways and inland navigation, intellectual and artistic relations, property rights and interests, administrative questions, liquor traffic, fisheries, opium and other narcotic drugs, etc.

These various treaties have been registered by 36 states. The number of treaties to which they are parties are shown as follows:

- Africa.—Union of South Africa, 5; Rhodesia, 1; Yemen, 1.
- America.—Argentina, 6; Bolivia, 3; Brazil, 11; Canada, 1; Chile, 4; Colombia, 1; Haiti, 1; Honduras, 1; Mexico, 2; Nicaragua, 1; Panama, 4; Paraguay, 2; Peru, 1; Salvador, 1; Venezuela, 1.
- Asia.—Afghanistan, 1; China, 1; India, 6; Iraq, 5; Palestine, 1; Persia, 2.
- Australia.—New Zealand, 1; Commonwealth of Australia, 3.
- Europe.—Germany, 18; Austria, 12; Belgium, 19; United Kingdom, 30; Bulgaria, 4; Denmark, 18; Dantzig, 1; Spain, 9; Estonia, 11; Finland, 8; France, 21; Greece, 4; Hungary, 13; Iceland, 6; Italy, 24; Latvia, 9; Lithuania, 5; Luxembourg, 4; Norway, 14; Netherlands, 10.

14; Poland, 23; Portugal, 3; Rumania, 27; Sweden, 13; Switzerland, 7; Czechoslovakia, 14; Turkey, 15; U. S. S. R., 10; Yugoslavia, 35; Permanent Council of the Little Entente, 1; Conference of Ambassadors, 1.

Fourteen treaties have been communicated by the United States in accordance with the arrangements made by the United States for that purpose. It should be noted that recently the United States signified its intention henceforward not only to communicate but also to register treaties with the Secretariat in the same way as is done by members of the League—a remarkable forward step which brings the United States into line with League endeavour.

Ten international engagements concluded under League auspices and deposited with the Secretariat have been registered ex-officio as an automatic consequence of their entry into force.

At the present time, the treaty series in which all registered international engagements are published in the language in which they are concluded, together with English and French translations wherever necessary, now comprises 142 volumes, each of about 450 pages.

The new pact of friendship, arbitration and non-aggression between Turkey and Yugoslavia which has just been ratified unconditionally by the Yugoslav Parliament is felt to constitute a new strand in the status quo net which is being woven about Bulgaria by its "anti-revisionist" Balkan neighbours.

The new treaty also strengthens Yugoslavia's position relative to Italy, it is contended. It is recalled that for some years Turkey has worked in close diplomatic co-operation with Rome and added to the influence of Italy in the Balkans rather than to that of France.

Italy until recently has considered Turkey, Bulgaria, Albania and Greece as favourable to Rome's Balkan policy. But Albania more than a year ago detached itself somewhat from the Italian orbit, while Greece is supposed to have weakened its ties with Rome by joining the Balkan pact of last February.

New Turkey has concluded a special treaty with Yugoslavia, the Government of which has not been too friendly toward Italy in the past.

Turkey's chief reason for its pact with Yugoslavia, it is believed here, is a fear of Italian expansion in the Mediterranean. Another reason is the close co-operation of Turkey with Russia, now a part of France's security system. The pact, it is said, is also part of a general plan of the anti-revisionist Balkan states to form such a system of interlocking treaties about Bulgaria that Sofia will be forced into a general Balkan bloc from which it has hitherto held aloof.

The new pact is based on the London definition of aggression, contains a clause against any third power that might attack either Yugoslavia or Turkey, and establishes arbitration as the only means for settling disputes between the two contracting parties. Its working is very similar to that of the Kellogg Pact.

"Well, I'll tell you what I'd do if my wife talked to me like that."

The Very Idea!

DEEP SEA FISHING

By George

ANOTHER fishy story comes to light with the report "of the largest tunny fish ever landed at Scarborough" being caught by a naval lieutenant.

The biggest catch of tunny ever made is credited to Dempsey but that is a story that the modest angler seldom relates.

We are inclined to reminisce over our own deep sea fishing off Kewloon Dock when we hear these tales and we can produce a photograph of the biggest and most savage garoupa that ever sailed the seven seas.

It was about seven o'clock in the morning when the harbour was rocked by huge waves which told of a gigantic subterranean struggle between a deep sea monster and the little worm which we had sailed and spiced before lowering it into the crystal depths.

Our boat was almost upset by rollers about thirty feet high which dashed against the shore. Had they been a foot higher we should be hearing this story from Davy Jones himself.

About four in the afternoon the garoupa—which we afterwards found it to be—blew up a spray of water and chugged off towards Lyemooon at a steady 15 knots.

Occasionally the sea donion came up for a breath of air but each time we slugged it through the tail with a harpoon, hoping thereby to put its steering apparatus out of order.

The next day found us still patrolling round the harbour a little tired through sitting in the boat but not so tired as the garoupa who was pulling it.

With the arrival of the Press and photographers off Repulse Bay, our fish made a great effort to come up to the occasion, surging out of the water and doing a couple of loops before flopping back to receive another harpoon in the lug.

When the garoupa finally tugged us in to the shore it had got so thin with its exertions that it was nothing like the fish we started off with.

In fact it was so reduced that an ignorant fellow coming along shortly afterwards thought it was too small to be out of the water and chucked it in again.

That's why we can never get anybody to believe our story.

DUMB-BELLES LETTRES.

We grew to love that sofa.

SOFA LOVE.

Mr. Louis Schlesinger.

Real Estate.

Our dear Mr. Schlesinger:

Since we moved into our apartment we have been endlessly fooled, cajoled, and harried by your agents. This perfect dream of a place was rented to us fully furnished and containing one of the sweetest little Davenport you ever set eyes upon—that is, if you go in for things of that kind, as we do. Just the darlingest comfy-cushioned-corner-warmer that ever yielded its smooth, soft bosom to a pair of tired-out hips. We grew to love that sofa, Mr. Schlesinger, and believe us, when people begin to have soft feelings about a piece of furniture, you have the makings of a nice problem when it comes to taking it away from them.

Mr. Stöner is a right well-spirited person, excellently smooth of tongue and pleasing to the eye, but withal, it seems he is a trifle too greatly given to subterfuge, doubtless because the time hangs heavy on his hands. He said that the lounge did not match our other furniture, and that we were not entitled to the bed feature which it contained.

When he threatened to take it away from us we threatened to break our lease. We are now on the point of leaving with our snouts in the wind. Don't you think it's just too mean for a great big company like yours to take people's lounges, davenports, sofas, hip-receivers and the like away from them ruthlessly and turn them out in the cold just so that you can use the furniture to fool others with? Have we actually been fooled, or do we just think we have?

Hoping to hear from you before they come for the kitchen sink, we remain, yours very truly,

Charles C.

CRAIGENGOWER REGAIN BOWLS TITLE

KOWLOON BOWLING GREEN FAIL BADLY AGAINST DOCKS

INDIANS HELD TO A DRAW

Kowloon Bowling Green Club failed badly in their last attempt to remain challengers to the Craigengower "A" for the first division lawn bowls league title, and, beaten on all rinks by Kowloon Dock, surrendered the championship to the Happy Valley team, who easily beat their colleagues on Saturday.

The Bowling Green could do nothing right at Kowloon Dock, losing by 26 shots. Drake's rink was nine down to Brown's four, while Randall's rink went down by eight shots and Guy's by seven. At Craigengower, where the A and B teams clashed in the season's return match, the seniors won comfortably, being held on only one rink, where Marchant, Milton, Summons and Lewis drew 20-all with U. M. Omar's four. The first drawn match of the season was played at Kowloon Bowling Green when the home club opposed the Indian Recreation Club, second division champions. Both recorded 49 shots. The Police, contestants for second place honours, were beaten by Kowloon Cricket Club, and the Bowling Green are now in a good position to finish runners-up.

INTERNATIONAL SHIELD

Surprise Win Of Ireland Over India

MORE CONSISTENT

Very indifferent bowling featured the second round game between India and Ireland on the Civil Service rinks yesterday, in the International lawn bowls competition. The Irish side played a much more consistent game than their opponents who were all, with the exception of U. M. Omar, inclined to be erratic.

The green was fast and very few good heads were seen, but Ireland deserve full value for their win of 25 shots to 17 in 21 heads.

The rinks were:
India—A. M. Omar, A. A. Razack, K. M. Omar and U. M. Omar (skip).
Ireland—J. F. Lunny, H. I. Lockart, J. W. E. Field and J. Cavanagh (skip).

India lost the first end by a single shot, but took the lead with a three wood lie on the second. They then dropped off badly and lost the next four successive heads while Ireland increased their total to 10 shots. U. M. Omar played two very fine woods in the seventh end to leave his rink lying three and Razack was mainly responsible for diminishing the deficiency by two points on the next end. They took the ninth with a single.

Then came another period of reverses for the Indians, when they lost the following four heads by three, one, one and four shots, giving Ireland a substantial lead of 19 points to 9. The Indians took the next with a three shot lie, and Cavanagh gave his side two points on the fifteenth with his last wood.

The score at this point stood at 21 shots to 12 in favour of Ireland, but the Indians stood up and got single lies on the next three ends, bringing their total to 15, six points behind with three ends to play.

Their hopes of getting in the lead were dashed on the next two heads which the Irishmen won by a single and a three respectively. They won the last head, however, by two shots.

DRAW FOR SEMI-FINAL

The semi-final matches will be played next Sunday afternoon, commencing at 3.30 p.m. The draw has already been made but the greens have not yet been allocated.

England, who beat Malaya in the second round, will meet Ireland and Switzerland, the conquerors of the Philippines in the second round, will be opposed to Portugal.

WALK-OVER FOR PORTUGAL

AUSTRALIAN RINK ROUTED

R. F. Luz skipped Portugal to a convincing victory by 33 shots to three over Australia in the International Bowls Rink tournament for the Gutierrez Shield at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club yesterday afternoon.

Australia were only able to score on two heads. They registered a two on the eighth head, and a single on the 10th. They were lying three shots on the last head, but W. H. B. Muskett, their skip, altered the lay of the woods with his first shot, and made an opening to enable Luz to creep in and lay the shot. Portugal scored three on this head.

Included in Portugal's score were one five on the fourth head, one four on the ninth head, two threes and three twos.

Luz was the outstanding player on the day, and time and again he was applauded for some brilliant bowling. Next to him came F. V. V. Ribeiro, the No. 2, who had the better of his opponent W. K. Way. L. A. Gutierrez, the No. 1, was apparently totally out of form, and seldom got the better of G. Leo, C. G. Silva, the No. 3, played consistently well, although he was at times apt to be a bit short.

For Australia, G. Leo performed best, and frequently kept training the "Jack" Way, the No. 2, was good and bad in patches, while E. C. Fletcher, No. 3, could never find his length on the tricky green. Muskett, as skip, was no match for Luz. In the last head, when Australia were lying three, Muskett might very well have blocked, but he drew instead, rather heavily, and pushed the "Jack" out towards his opponents woods, and Luz took the opportunity by laying another one to give his side three.

The rinks were:
Portugal—L. A. Gutierrez, F. V. V. Ribeiro, C. G. Silva and R. F. Luz (skip).
Australia—G. Leo, W. K. Way, E. C. Fletcher and W. H. B. Muskett (skip).

RUGBY IN ENGLAND

London, Sept. 22.
The two Welsh Rugby centres, Swans and Cardiff, played a close encounter to-day, the former winning by eleven points to eight.

Bedford, playing against Leicester, were beaten by nine points to five, and Northampton won against Richmond by eleven points to three.

TAM KONG PAK
OUTSTANDING

MATCH DESCRIBED BY "VERITAS"

The lure of football is again asserting itself in Hongkong after an interval of about five months, and in spite of the high temperature, teams were very active during the week-end putting in final practice matches before the start of the season proper next week.

Chief attraction, naturally, was the friendly encounter between the Combined Chinese and the Rest at Caroline Hill yesterday. Actually the term "Combined Chinese" is a mis-nomer, for, as so often happens with these so-called combined teams, half of the originally selected players did not turn out, and yesterday saw a complete South China Athletic team with the exception of Fung King-mui on the left wing.

The Rest also had some changes. Robertson injured himself while playing for the Club on Saturday and cried off; Chris Pilo was a non-starter, as also was Eggman. In consequence the left-back position was filled by Herbert while Stanley came in at right half and Bally operated on the left wing.

The ground was in excellent condition—very fast, but with a much smoother surface than last season when ball control was often rendered extremely difficult. The attendance was possibly not what one might have expected, yet it was by no means poor. The Caroline Hill area is a large place to fill, and to have the main stand a third full, the terrace behind the Soekunpo pool well patronised and a fair sprinkling in the other stand behind the entrance goal; is not at all bad considering the weather and its consequent counter attractions.

NEW COVERED TERRACE

Incidentally South China supporters have reason to be gratified with the club's officials, who have improved the ground by covering the terrace behind the entrance goal. May I suggest, however, some attention to the goal nets. There were large rents in both of them.

As for the game which saw the Chinese win (luckily) by the odd goal in three, one can fairly describe it as a reasonably good display taking all things into consideration. Adopting a strictly critical attitude one would say it was a somewhat scrappy game, and typical of the sort one expects to see somewhat round about March. There were lots of appalling blunders, a considerable amount of ball wastage by indiscriminate passing, a lack of play in both attacks, and numerous scoring chances allowed to slip by.

Against this there was some amazing energy and delightful keenness shown by all the players. There were also intervals when the football promised to reach a comparatively high standard, and most certainly there were some very good individual displays.

Players like Podmore, Mullane, Ridley, Li, Tin-sang and Tam Kong-pak were so typical in all they did that one could easily imagine they were in the middle of a season, instead of the very beginning. None of them appear to have suffered any loss of skill during their enforced absence from the soccer field.

PODMORE'S VITALITY

Podmore's vitality was of the brand which did so much in carrying the Borderers to great triumphs last season. He had some glorious duels with Wong Mee-shun and earned a slight balance of honours therefrom. His interceptions and tackling were wonderfully timed, and it is with a positive sigh of relief that one recalls this young man will be available for public inspection on the local football field until November. When he does leave, Hongkong is going to lose one of the most skilled centre-halves ever seen here. But we will refrain from anticipating such an unpleasant moment.

But Podmore was not the only one yesterday to leave a satisfying impression. Mullane was particularly attractive, making the subjugation of Tay Quan-tong look a very simple matter. Neither did he ever cry out to Fung King-mui when it came to a stand up encounter for possession.

Cord's goalkeeping recalled a fact made apparent last season, that he is an Interceptor in the making. He had more work to do than his opposite number, and except for the way he shaped for Li Tin-sang's long shot which led to the Chinese first goal, remained errorless throughout the game.

Up in the forward line only Dick Ridley played as though it were not the first big match of the season. A natural footballer, he can be expected to remain on the same high level of efficiency all the year round. His neat foot-work was constantly making things difficult for the Chinese defence, and Leung Wing-chui at right half was never in the same class.

MATHIAS SHOTS TOO OFTEN

Unfortunately Ridley's work was not reflected in the rest of the attack. Higgins was slow to seize openings, and although continually receiving the ball in favourable positions, never once tested Wong Wai-ki with a really good shot. Elliot did a certain amount of useful constructive work, but without finish; Mathias shot too often, and it is to be hoped that his goal-scoring achievements of last season are not going to make him forget the first duties of a winger. Baldry was reasonable while he had plenty of room and time in which to deliver his kicks, but once hustled, or tackled, and he faded into obscurity.

My reactions to the general type of play indulged in by the Chinese lead me to suggest that they are in danger of committing the same mistakes which cost them so dearly a few months ago. They are still deliberately choosing the close-passing game in front of goal, making the onlooker feel that all of the forwards are afraid of taking the responsibility of the final shot.

True Tam Kong-pak did let fly with one or two hot ones, scored a beautiful goal and was chiefly responsible for the other as a result of his timely rush at Cord; but there was far too much ball-

MCINNES SHOWS REAL INTERPORT FORM

VERY FINE INNINGS MAKES HIM ALMOST CERTAINLY

PEREIRA ALSO IMPRESSES

(By "Round Arm")

The most entertaining feature of Saturday's Interport cricket trial was the batting of McInnes. It was by far the most sparkling knock in any of the trial games to date, and should prove good enough to make him a certainty for Shanghai. The innings will certainly go a long way to establishing him in local cricket.

Good Bowling By Bonavia And Smith

K.C.C. PRACTICE MATCH

Lee, playing for Stapleton's team, carried his bat through the innings for a patient 56. It was the right type of innings with the only wickets falling fast, but later he hit out and with the aid of Sargent, who scored a very fine 6, helped to put the fairly respectable score of 133 for 9 wickets on the board.

Bonavia bowled with skill. Turning sharply both ways, he had the majority of batsmen in difficulties. Bowling left arm round the wicket, he delivered a very fine ball on the leg stump which broke away to the off. In view of the fact that the wicket offered but little assistance to spin bowling, Bonavia's work was excellent.

Smith maintained a good accurate length to obtain most of his five victims, but he was not afraid to adopt variations in flight and pace and was never easy to get away.

Jex kept wicket in creditable style, taking everything very efficiently.

Ernest Zimmermann, former Craigengower wicket-keeper-batsman, had his first try out of the season, and there is no doubt that he will prove a decided asset to Kowloon this winter. Nevertheless the club is confronted with the problem of finding a good opposite bowler to Burnett.

LINCOLNS HAPPY

Welcome Return Of Ash

The Lincolns were not so clever in mid-field, but they still retain a useful outfit. Ridley will continue to be the brains of the attack, and Higgins is an enterprising leader who can be expected to score a lot of goals. A welcome return was made by Ash, who, until his injury in the early part of last season, operated at left back. On Saturday he played in the pivotal position and was as good as ever. Once the newcomers have settled down to the requirements of first division football, the Lincolns will be able to take the field confident of meeting any team on equal terms.

KOWLOON WILL BE BETTER

Kowloon will definitely be stronger this year than they have

McInnes found the fairly fast wicket to his liking, and, timing the ball to perfection, made all the bowling look simple. He was especially severe on Smith, despatching his fast deliveries on the leg to the boundary almost every time. His most daring shot was a pull to the leg boundary when he literally picked the ball off his face. McInnes, however, displayed that he has a collection of sound strokes on both sides of the wicket. It was a confident innings betokening an efficient batsman with his eye in.

Frank Pereira's bowling was another thing which must have greatly pleased the selectors. He maintained an impeccable length, plus accuracy for six overs, in the course of which he conceded eight runs for three wickets. On this form Pereira can legitimately claim to be the best fast bowler in the Colony and a decided asset to any team.

On the whole the cricket last Saturday was much brighter than in any of the previous games. The apparent "Probables" all "came off" in their various ways, and made pretty light of the opposition.

Minu bowled very well indeed, but without much luck. If he continues to retain such form it will be extremely difficult to exclude him from the Interport side.

But the problem of finding a good opening pair has still to be solved. It has been suggested that the selectors have reached a stage when they feel it is impossible to find the two batsmen required, and are now adopting a method of elimination.

It will not be surprising to see Lieut. Williams given his place, although on current performances one feels diffident in suggesting him as the ideal selection. His only claim is batsmanship and he has comparatively failed in this department in all the trials. His fielding has left much to be desired. Nevertheless it can be anticipated that he will recover something approaching true form during the next few weeks.

been for the last three seasons. The big improvement noted is in attack, where the Knox brothers on either wing, and Elliot, and the Whites inside, are rapidly settling down into an effective attacking force. There also appears to be more stability in defence, which will be more pronounced when Ellis has taken up his position in the half back line.

Against the Medicals on Saturday, Kowloon played entertaining football, and no apparent weaknesses could be found in the team. They had lively opposition in the soldiers, who fully tested the capabilities of the peninsula players.

As far as Kowloon were concerned, it was an entirely satisfactory trial.

AROUND THE CLUBS

Recreio Benefit From The Gosanos' Presence

(By "Veritas").

Some indication of what the presence of the Gosano brothers is going to mean to the Recreio this year was given on Saturday, when the Portuguese club met the Navy in a friendly match. A. V. Gosano, playing at centre-forward and Bernie at inside left, were in dazzling form, and continuance of it means the Recreio can look forward to a season of successes.

Nevertheless I am wondering if A. V. will remain leader of the attack. I believe he is actually ear-marked for left back, partnering the clever Silva-Netto, but it may be the Recreio feel Bowen is strong enough to occupy the position. He played a reasonably sound game against the Navy, although his tactical play is still somewhat elementary.

Boltrao is a decided asset to the half back line which was one of the big weaknesses of the team last year, and if the Recreio can spare the Gosano brothers in the forward line it means that a lot of goals are going to accrue.

Taken all round the Recreio have every reason to regard the future with optimism. They have lost of last year's improving team, but the inclusion of the Gosanos and Boltrao enables them to strengthen some weak spots.

CLUB ARE STILL IMPROVING

Better Balanced Team This Year

The Hongkong Football Club are also silently congratulating themselves, following a really impressive showing against the Lincolns.

There is promised balance in the team this year which has hitherto been sadly lacking. Later on, of course, they will be strengthened by the return of "Bunny" Bickford, due back about the middle of November, but in the meantime they have good reason to regard the early part of the league season with equanimity.

Robertson, Pote-Hunt and Tavlin gave a repeat performance of sound half back play, and behind them Sydney Strange and George Rodger were at their best. Supporters noted with pleasure the rejuvenation of Albert Howe and a reappearance in the Club attack which indicated an all-round improvement.

TRIAL SHEDS MORE LIGHT ON INTERPORT PROBLEM

WILL IT BE WILLIAMS OR BAINES?

OPENING BATSMAN QUESTION FACES SELECTORS

CONFIDENT PREDICTION OF PROBABLE TEAM

(BY R. ABBETT)

It is not very often that one has definitely to hand it to the weather, but (writing, of course, with my fingers crossed) we really have been fortunate to get in three Saturday afternoons cricket, out of four possible so far in the month of September. Let us hope that the next week end will be as favourable.

On Saturday last T. E. Pearce's XI obviously contained a very large percentage of players about whom the Powers that Be—(and the names of the Selection Committee have not, I think, been published, though I speak subject to correction)—have already made up their minds.

As I see it, the two players put in to Hayward's side to show what they could do against the Probables were Mitchell and Elvin. But as it happened, a professional engagement kept Baines out of the field for a long time, and accordingly Mitchell went over and battled for Pearce's team. I should have preferred to see him up against our best bowling.

THE OPENING PROBLEM.

Before a brief account of the play, I propose to discuss the opening problem, which is the one that has been the subject of much discussion, and the one that has been the subject of much discussion.

I am going to assume that we are not worried about our batting. It is on the whole, the only question that can arise, is whether we play Minu or Elvin. I said in my last article we might see both in the side. I am not so sure now, but I will discuss the point later.

The first problem we are up against is the selection of our opening pair of batsmen. At one time I thought that the question was more or less solved by the Mitchell-Williams combination. I still think that Mitchell must be one of the two for I cannot see two other batsmen in the list of probabilities. No, Duckett cannot go! And even if you write down Mitchell for a certainty as one of them, what happens next?

It seems to me to boil down to Baines or J. P. Williams. Now, at the start of the season I had thought it was a certainty for Williams, but it was a mistake. He has not come off in a single trial and his fielding has been poor. I cannot see any justification for including him now in the side, though I am sure that if he could only produce his true form he would walk in to the side. But it is performance that must be our present criterion.

Baines has played one excellent knock, and after he coked up his very first ball from Madar, a simple half-volley on the leg stump, to short mid-on, he was sent in again seventh wicket down and played eventually a very nice knock. He has all the shots—but I am afraid he is a nervous starter.

Much as I deprecate his coarseness of language, I can see what my low friend Mr. Pevens means when he suggests a glass of strong waters before batting (Reference—"Crucel only to be kind"—Ingoldby Legends.) Frankly, Baines is my choice.

BOWLING PROBLEM.

The next vital question is the bracket Minu-Elvin. It is true that, up to last Saturday, Elvin had much the better of actual figures. But, as I understand the matter, it seems doubtful if he will get the better bats out, and if he does not, he will be terribly expensive.

I don't think that either he or Minu react well to being hit, but I think the latter would stand up to it best. And when you come to apply other tests—Minu, in the absence of Bowker, is probably our best field at a certain distance from the wicket, and is a potential slogger.

AN OUTSTANDING INNINGS.

It was a great personal pleasure to me to see Minu's knock. I have always felt him to be a better batsman than he seems, or indeed, has ever shown himself to be. He does watch the ball. In the last trial, when he took fifty minutes to make three runs (score-book, seven) he was watching the ball against good bowling when his side were in a bad way. Well, Ernest Smith of Yorkshire once saved a game by making a two-hour duck. (This is a fact!)

On Saturday, Minu showed he could attack the bowling. He watched the ball and his shots were delightfully crisp. Admittedly he got a bit of jam in the way of loose balls—but it was a good knock, despite a quick change to short mid-on. His combined with his really excellent fielding, to my mind should put him into a place, even if it is only to give him big game experience. He can bowl but I don't think he will be wanted.

CASUALTIES.

It was with the greatest regret that I heard that Owen Hughes has been too fit lately and that, in addition to a sharp touch of lumbago, he is suffering from temporary eye trouble. To turn over to batting, in places where one is over thirty must be most difficult at first and I understand that it is not absolutely certain that he will be able to take his place in the side. It is needless to say that a disaster this would be, but I prefer to hope that he will be fit to play.

Unless he should be unable to turn out, I cannot see any place in the side for Madar, who was Elvin's only victim to a tame chase decision. He got a couple of cheap wickets, but we don't want him for bowling.

THE SIDE?

I am not sure yet whether an Interport Side—with reservations of course—has or has not yet been picked, but I gather the probable (really probable) side will play the Rest at the R.C.C. on 29th and 30th September. I know nothing of what has been settled but I will wager that the following side will not be far off our ultimate choice—barring illness and inability to get away. The order is roughly that of batting though as far as I can see, with two hitters like Pereira and Minu in the side, no Captain is going to adhere slavishly to any order he may originally put down!

My men are E. J. R. Mitchell, H. W. Baines, T. A. Pearce, H. Owen Hughes, T. E. Pearce, C. C. Garthwaite, G. R. M. Ricketts, I. Minu, A. R. Minu, F. Pereira and G. S. Dunkley.

If Owen Hughes finds at the latter end he cannot play, I would bring in A. H. Madar, but more Garthwaite up to second wicket and put Madar fourth wicket, unless Hongkong are batting after a long spell of holding when I would swap Madar and T. E. Pearce in the order.

DOUBTFUL POINTS.

It may be suggested that Ricketts has done little so far. Personally I think he is worth his place as a first slip apart from anything else. But he has looked very well on Saturday (7-2-10-0) and I gather might well have had a wicket to show with luck. I was sorry not to see him get a knock. The success of putting Minu in early rather stresses this. Ricketts has not got so many wickets this year but he can be neglected as a batsman, and he ought to be given a certain amount of practice. On his bowling form, (but apart from his

THE PLAY.

I see that I said I would say something about the play—the I have dealt already with most of the salient points. Millbank would be a very useful bowler if he could gain accuracy. He runs away a bit to the off, and has a good off break, but he presents the batsmen with far too many fouls on the leg side. Elvin did not have too much luck in the field, but to any good bat who uses his feet, he is no danger whatever on a good wicket. There was a sorry collapse of Hayward's side. It was not until Baines came in for his second knock and Stewart joined him that we saw any cricket.

The bowling was good enough. But I wish that Pereira could undergo a surgical operation to cut out those appalling semi-wide on the leg, of which he seems entirely to lose control. If Dunkley should bring in "justifiable homicide" yet, the moment he bowls at the wicket he is the cat's whiskers and definitely jugglery inside of the penalty area to create the belief that the Chinese would score a lot of goals.

This is undoubtedly their chief weakness; in fact it is about their only serious weakness, but it is of such importance that it can easily lose them games, as it did last season.

WITHOUT BLEMISH.

Comparatively speaking the defence was without blemish. Both Li and Lau Mau cleared vigorously and with the utmost confidence; they were never out-manoeuvred, covering well and invariably the key to a sound strategic position.

Li Kwok-ki was a splendid left half and Wong Mee-shun looks as though he will remain a pivot for the rest of the season. Leung Wing-chui gave a definitely "early season" display.

Tam Kong-pak was a treat to watch. His leadership was excellent, and as I have already intimated he was largely responsible for both goals. The second one which he directly scored followed a wonderful individual effort, when he crowded out three opponents before getting in his final kick.

Another very bright member of the attack was Tso Kwai-shing, who as successor to Young Shui-ick promised to develop into one of the foremost right wingers in local football. He combines a great turn of speed with first rate ball control, a good knowledge of the art of dribbling, and a fine kick with either foot. A lot will be heard of this player in the near future.

There is very little to comment about the play itself. The exchanges were so keen that they always remained interesting, and there were plenty of thrills in front of both goals. The Rest had most of the territorial advantage, and certainly twice as many scoring opportunities. But they were constantly ignored and because of this the Chinese won. The Rest could have scored at least four goals in the second half, by which I mean four open goals were missed. They had to rest content with one, netted by Ridley following a perfect centre from Mathias.

LI'S CLEAR SHOT.

This came as an equaliser, the Chinese, scoring two minutes before the interval. Li Tin-sang went up to just over the halfway line to take a free kick, and judiciously it perfectly dropped the ball right in the goalmouth, where Cora hesitated a fraction of a second and had the ball bounded out of his hands by the enterprising Tam Kong-pak.

After the Rest had equalised they fairly monopolised the play, but Higgins was badly hurt while missing an open goal, and during his absence, Tam took the ball down very cleverly, outwitted Mullane and Co., and bent Cora with a rasping drive.

is twenty-five per cent. faster than anything Shanghai has got—and that goes for my old friend, Mr. Elliot.

One last word. I gather G. A. Stewart cannot get away. If he could, I should vote for him every time. He has, as a bit, many excellent strokes, though I think he is rather apt to try and sweep the ball off his leg stump to long leg in a dangerous way. He is a very hard worker in the field, and no mean medium bowler. If he stays here, we shall, I think, hear much of him.

AQUATIC SPORTS

AMBULANCE MEETING AT NORTH POINT

Brigade Title

The Brigade Championship was won by Lo Yuk-wing yesterday morning, when the St. John Ambulance Brigade held their annual swimming meeting at the Chinese Athletic Association pavilion at North Point.

The Divisional Championship was won by the Chinese Athletic Association, who scored a score of 10 points, and the Individual Championship was won by Chan Shek-pui (King's College Old Boys) and Lo Yuk-wing (Chinese Athletic Association) who tied with a score of six points each.

At the conclusion of the events the prizes were presented to the winners by Mrs. J. Ralston.

The results were as follows:
100 metres free style.—1, Lo Yuk-wing; 2, A. K. Minu; 3, Chan Sul-po. Time 76.2/5 secs.

Life Saving.—1, Chan Shek-pui; 2, Chiu Fook-in; 3, Lo Poon-ho and Lo Ping-tang.

60 metres breast stroke.—1, Chan Shek-pui; 2, Lo Poon-ho; 3, Chik Suk-fuk. Time 43.4/5 secs.

50 metres back stroke.—1, Lo Yuk-wing; 2, Chan Sul-ping and Lo Ping-sung. Time 43.4/5 secs.

200 metres team relay.—1, China Athletic Association; 2, King's College (Present); 3, Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Divisional Championship.—1, China Athletic Association (10 points); 2, King's College Old Boys (10 points); 3, Chinese Y.M.C.A. (6 points).

Individual Championship.—1, Chan Shek-pui (King's College Old Boys); and Lo Yuk-wing (Chinese Athletic Association), 6 points each.

NORTH POINT GALA

Chinese Civil Servants' Hold Meeting

A successful swimming gala was staged at the Chinese Civil Servants' Club, North Point, on Saturday, despite the fact that several of the best Chinese swimmers were not competing, being away in Canton for the Kwangtung provincial aquatic sports meet.

The 200 metres four style event, open to the Colony, was carried off by Chan Fook-shing, of the Chinese Civil Servants' Club, with Mak Wai-ming a close second.

A water polo match between the Whites and the Blacks resulted in a win for the former team by two goals to one. Chan Fook-shing netted both goals. The winners, and Mak Wai-ming scored for the losers.

The prizes, at the conclusion of the meeting, were distributed by Mr. Richard Shim.

RESULTS.

200 Metres (open to the Colony).—1, Chan Fook-shing; 2, Mak Wai-ming; 3, Chan Yau-tin. Time; 3 min. 10 secs.

50 Metres handicap (men's) 35 years and over.—1, Yeung Kai-yui; 2, Leung Kwok-tai.

100 Metres for girl beginners.—1, Chan Yau-ling; 2, Lai Sau-ye; 3, Leung Ching-chun.

100 Metres (men's).—1, Mak Wai-ming; 2, Ip Chun-ek; 3, Lam Ping-tong.

50 Metres for Chinese Civil Servants.—1, Wong Poon-wai; 2, Leung Kwok-tai.

50 Metres breast stroke for boys and girls.—1, Miss So Wai-king; 2, Miss Lai Sau-fan; 3, Miss Lau Wan-tao.

100 Metres back stroke (women's).—1, Chan Woon-kin; 2, Chan Chai-king.

50 Metres mathematical swim.—1, Leung Kwok-chuen; 2, Pau Hon-lam; 3, Lai Pun-sin.

The following were the water polo teams:
Whites.—Chan King-to, Kwok Chai-shun, Chan Chak-choi, Chan Fook-shing, Lam Ping-tong, Lai Pun-sin and Chung Yui-tin.

Blacks.—Chang Kam-wah, Sun Fushun, Fan Kwai-choi, Chan Lai-ki, Ip Chun-ek, Mak Wai-ming and Chan Kit-choi.

FLIGHT FAILS

COBHAM FORCED DOWN AT MALTA

London, Sept. 22.
Sir Alan Cobham and Squadron-Leader Helmore took off from Portsmouth at 6.32 a.m. to-day on their attempted 5,200 non-stop flight to India. They plan to refuel in the air at four points.

Their plane, the "Airspeed Courier", was not fully loaded with petrol when they took off, but they will take on more fuel from an air tanker off Solway Bill. This will give sufficient petrol to reach Malta.

They hope to reach Karachi in 48 hours.

The air liner which fuelled Sir Alan Cobham's plane crashed in a field in Buckinghamshire and its four occupants were incinerated.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRE

Actors and actresses in the Hollywood film colony have won many rewards for their work in fame and money, but Maureen O'Sullivan is one of the few who can say that she owes her good health to a motion picture. When Miss O'Sullivan first arrived in Hollywood after her appearance in the Irish film "Song of My Heart" she was rushed into a series of pictures immediately without a chance to rest. She was underweight and was advised by doctors to recuperate. Then she was given a role in "Tarzan the Ape Man" during the filming of which she gained five pounds. Now more than a year later, she has just finished a part in "Tarzan and His Mate," adventure picture with Johnny Weissmuller which is showing at the Queen's Theatre to capacity houses. With Miss O'Sullivan and Weissmuller in the thrilling new "Tarzan" adventure are such members of the original cast as Neil Hamilton, Forrester Harvey and Doris Lloyd. Other roles are filled by Paul Cavanagh, William Stack, Desmond Roberts and Nathan Carry.

"Hold That Girl"

James Dunn, one of the outstanding actors now riding on a wave of popularity on the screen, made so many tests at various New York studios and film offices when he first started that he lost all interest in the movies. When Fox Film invited him to make a test two and a half years ago, he waited several days for no reason at all before he finally dropped around to face the camera. "The only reason I went at all, I believe," he said, "was that I'd been tested by every other company and I thought I might as well round out the list." Within a few days he was on his way to Hollywood, the memorable "Bad Girl" role, and success. He has now completed the second picture in which he and Claire Trevor, also of New York, are co-starring, "Hold That Girl" coming on Wednesday to the King's Theatre. Others in the cast are Alan Edwards, Gertrude Michael, John Davidson, Robert McWade, Edie Eklund and Jay Ward. Hamilton MacFadden directed.

"The World Changes"

Aline MacMahon has established a record that is likely to be unchallenged by any of her fellow-players for some time to come. In the Warner Bros. First National picture, "The World Changes," which is coming to the Alhambra Theatre, with Paul Muni in the stellar role, Miss MacMahon has beaten the age record for any single character in any single story since pictures began to talk. At the close of the picture, Aline is well into her nineties, still hale and hearty, leading the fourth generation of Nordholms back to where the family settled in the Dakotas in 1860. While the story does not exactly Miss MacMahon's age at its opening, five years before the Civil War broke out, she could not have been more than twenty. The drama runs for about three-quarters of a century, making her ninety-four when her great-grandson, and his young bride, return to the north-western prairie where she and her pioneer husband built their first home. Other dramas of the screen have brought their heroines into their seventies before their story has been told. So far as is known, this is the only picture in which human existence has been so closely approached in a picture drama. Besides the star, Paul Muni and Aline MacMahon, the cast of "The World Changes" includes such distinguished players as Mary Astor, Guy Kibbee, Henry O'Neill, Anna Q. Nilson, Willard Robertson, Jean M. Arthur, Hohl, Wallace Clark, Oscar Apfel, Doug Dumbrell, Donald Cook, Patricia Ellis and Margaret Lindsay.

"Murder in the Private Car"

During the filming of "Murder in the Private Car," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy-mystery thriller in which Charlie Ruggles is featured and which is coming to the Theatre on the extra list payroll at one time or another through Ruggles' assistance. With most of them he had worked on the stage, in one time or another, others came to him, recommended by mutual friends. But to all of them he was a sort of benign god-father, and he is continuing to guide them in their efforts to make a place for themselves in motion pictures. Ruggles' first appearance on the screen was in "Murder in the Private Car," in which he plays a comedy detective of crime who saves Una Moreau, Mary Carlisle, Russell Hardie, Berton Churchill and other members of the picture from a tragic fate. The picture is loaded with laughs, and thrills. Adapted from the successful stage play "The Rear Car," it was directed by Harry Beaumont.

Seldom has there been staged a show of such magnitude and magnificence as the First National production

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

BOOTS BLAZHURN, 19 and pretty, is openly snubbed by SYLVIA RIVER, the richest girl in Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb. Sylvia falls to ask Boots to a party at the yacht club. Boots accepts, a belated invitation from MISS WATERMAN, one of the elderly social hostess.

HAIRY WITMORE, one of Sylvia's suitors, who had been drinking, puts Boots in an embarrassing situation and she is escorted home by MISS LEE, a young man with the intention of the woman's club to ask Boots to resign from the Junior.

Young MISS GEORGE, a neighbour, asks Boots to lunch. She is sympathetic, tells Boots she ought to get away from Larchmont, and promises to help her find a job. Russ Lund takes Boots for a drive.

CHAPTER XII

"Well, that will be about enough of that," Boots said to herself in the silence and coolness of her own room. Russ Lund had kissed her and she had explained to him later, gently but firmly, that it simply wouldn't do and that was all there was to it.

She and Russ had had a "good talk" coming home from the shore. She would have believed that the big, square-jawed, manly-looking fellow so articulate. She was perfectly right, he had agreed. It wouldn't happen again. She was "darned sweet" and he wanted to be friends. "I managed it rather nicely," Boots told herself, peering at herself in the mirror in the light of the pale electric bulb which swung erratically from a green cord. She felt rather proud of herself on the whole. After all Russ was definitely older and she had been judicious and mature and in the situation, had met it gravely and simply as woman should. No, she didn't like "pawing about." It was all right if it happened to be "the real thing" but what she felt for Russ, she had explained carefully and with what she felt was just the proper touch of reserve, was purely friendship, rough, shabby, twined, but just that. A month ago she had not known this tall, bronzed man with the unruly hair and the big, smiling mouth even existed. He had simply been part of the background along with the dipping sails, the awnings, the iron tables and the cushions, or he had delicately come alive. She was conscious of him, his bigness and his strength, but they would remain "faded, nothing more."

Just the same she couldn't help noticing that in the mirror her eyes looked enormous, excited. The pupils were dilated. Her colour, too, was high. She had a sudden wish to look in either case. She leaned forward across the littered dressing table top with her bare and pin trays and took a glance at herself in the Frank limitation. Why she looked different already and she wasn't in love with him at all. It was just that his words, that brief, not-pleasant moment when she had been crushed close in his arms had done something to her.

"Awakened—I'm awake," murmured the girl to herself. "Oh, this was foolishness," she was only playing really. It was nice to know someone admired you, thought you were beautiful, desirable—

She went to sleep with a little tangle of conscious power, hovering about her lips. Oh, this was just the thing to let him kiss her again, she told herself firmly. He would have to realize she simply couldn't consider him in that way. So it was perfectly all right.

But of course the thing wasn't settled as simply as that. The summer nights continued to be miraculous of scent and sweetness and Boots, in her new-found isolation from "the gang," was very lonely. More often than not, when her father dozed fitfully in the porch swing, a small car would slide up to the curb and the girl would call back softly, "I'm just going down to the Post Road for a few minutes."

Then she and Russ would be skimming the roads together. He would look down at her and smile that slow smile of his and any softly, "How you coming, sweetness?"

And she would flash him a smile in return. She would be content with that. After that first night he had not touched her again and there was something in his control that plucked the girl unutterably. She had no chance now to play the sweet, equable, womanly role she had decided upon.

To-night she was not unconscious of looking her best in the plaid brown and yellow argand, the very frock she had worn to the fateful party at the yacht club.

"I might as well get some good out of it," she had said to her image in the mirror. "I wasn't going any place else and it was cool. She had brushed her yellow halo of curls with especial care. Her small mouth was just touched with a scarlet salve.

"Well, this is our last ride together," she told him smiling, as the car slowed down a brief grade.

She made the effect she had counted on. The young man at her side said with flattering concern, "Why? What do you mean by that?"

"My mother comes home to-morrow," Boots said, with a brief, fluttering laugh in which nervousness and shyness were mingled. "She's terribly funny. She'll think there's something serious about this. Our being friends."

He said something under his breath which she did not hear. The seat of the car was suddenly clung to his rough, shabby tweed coat. His duck trousers were old, too, and many times washed, but to Boots to-night he seemed extraordinarily virile and handsome. He was a man, anyway, she told herself, and that was more than she could say for Johnny—or even Hairy Whitmore. They were only children. This man had been to Singapore and Port Said and Shanghai. He had shipped as a common seaman on fruit boats and cattle boats. He had seen the world—

"What did you say?" Her flower-like face was very close to his. Her small feet, in their shabby, very strapped slippers, were planted squarely on the floorboard, close to his big brogues.

"I said that was a rotten break," Russ told her slowly. "Well, it's been fun and you're a grand little pal and maybe I'll be seeing you. I'm pushing off next week, away, planted, squarely on the floorboard, close to his big brogues.

"Not much," drawled the man. "I've been getting restless, hanging around here. I've got an offer to go down on a cattle place in Chile. About ten or twelve days before, Russ suddenly felt that she could not bear it. Why, Russ was her only real friend now. She saved up things to tell him—little things that made him widen his eyes, made him throw back his head and laugh resonantly. On the beach she had been sitting near his life-guard station every day now, car less of the curious glances thrown their way. She hadn't minded Sylvia's gathering to herself the usual little sympathetic group as long as she had Russ to talk to. The days had passed quickly. People had looked inquisitively at the small, fair-haired girl with the body of a Tanagra figurine talking quickly, earnestly to the squarely built young man with the "life guard" sign on his bathing suit. More often than not they had lapsed into a silence more intimate even than words.

"Why, why—I had no idea you were discontented here," Boots ruminated quickly, feeling utterly at a loss. "I thought—I rather thought—"

She could not complete the sentence. Hot blood burned her cheeks and pounded in her temples. She must not, simply could not behave this way; it was ridiculous. What would he think?

It seemed not to notice anything. They were on the outskirts of New Martin now. There were lights and shops instead of the pale moons of lamps along a country road.

"I have to be moving along," Russ said simply, easily. "Besides, there's no use hanging around here any more. You'll be going back to the crowd any day now. You won't know I'm alive."

She choked on her denial. "How can you say such things? You've been a peach to me. I don't know how I would have got through this summer."

Tears rose to her eyes, tears of self-pity and wounded vanity—yes, and something else. There was a lump as big as baseball somewhere in her throat. This was what poets meant when they wrote of the heart's pangs. Why, she was feeling them now as surely and agonizedly as though some pressure were being brought to bear against her swift-beating human heart.

Russ brought the little car to a stop in front of a sweet shop. Lights rushed from the gayly decorated windows with their bon-bons in pink boxes, their trays of spilling taffies and jars of bright, broken red and green sourballs. Boots stared at the display apathetically.

"Want a drink?"

"Oh, I don't—I don't think so." Other nights they had laughed at each other in the white heat of this small place across a shining white marble table-top while a youth in a white apron slaved down water tumblers and paper napkins and took their orders. Just now the very thought of entering that bright, gorgeous place sickened her a little.

"Want me to bring one out?"

"All right, then, she would have a lemonade. As she sipped the tepid, sweet-sour mixture she regarded her escort over the top of the glass. Why had she never noticed before how really handsome he was? Breath-takingly, she realized that he had come to possess her imagination—it was Russ she looked forward to seeing by day, Russ who filled her night-time dreams.

Seemingly oblivious to any undercurrents of thought, perfectly willing to keep their friendship on the platonic plane Boots herself had chosen only a short 10 days before, Russ took from her the half-emptied glass. He drove her homeward. Every foot of the way was a sort of agony to the young girl.

"I love him," she told herself wildly. "And he doesn't care a thing about me. He's going away. What shall I do?"

LESSON SERMON.

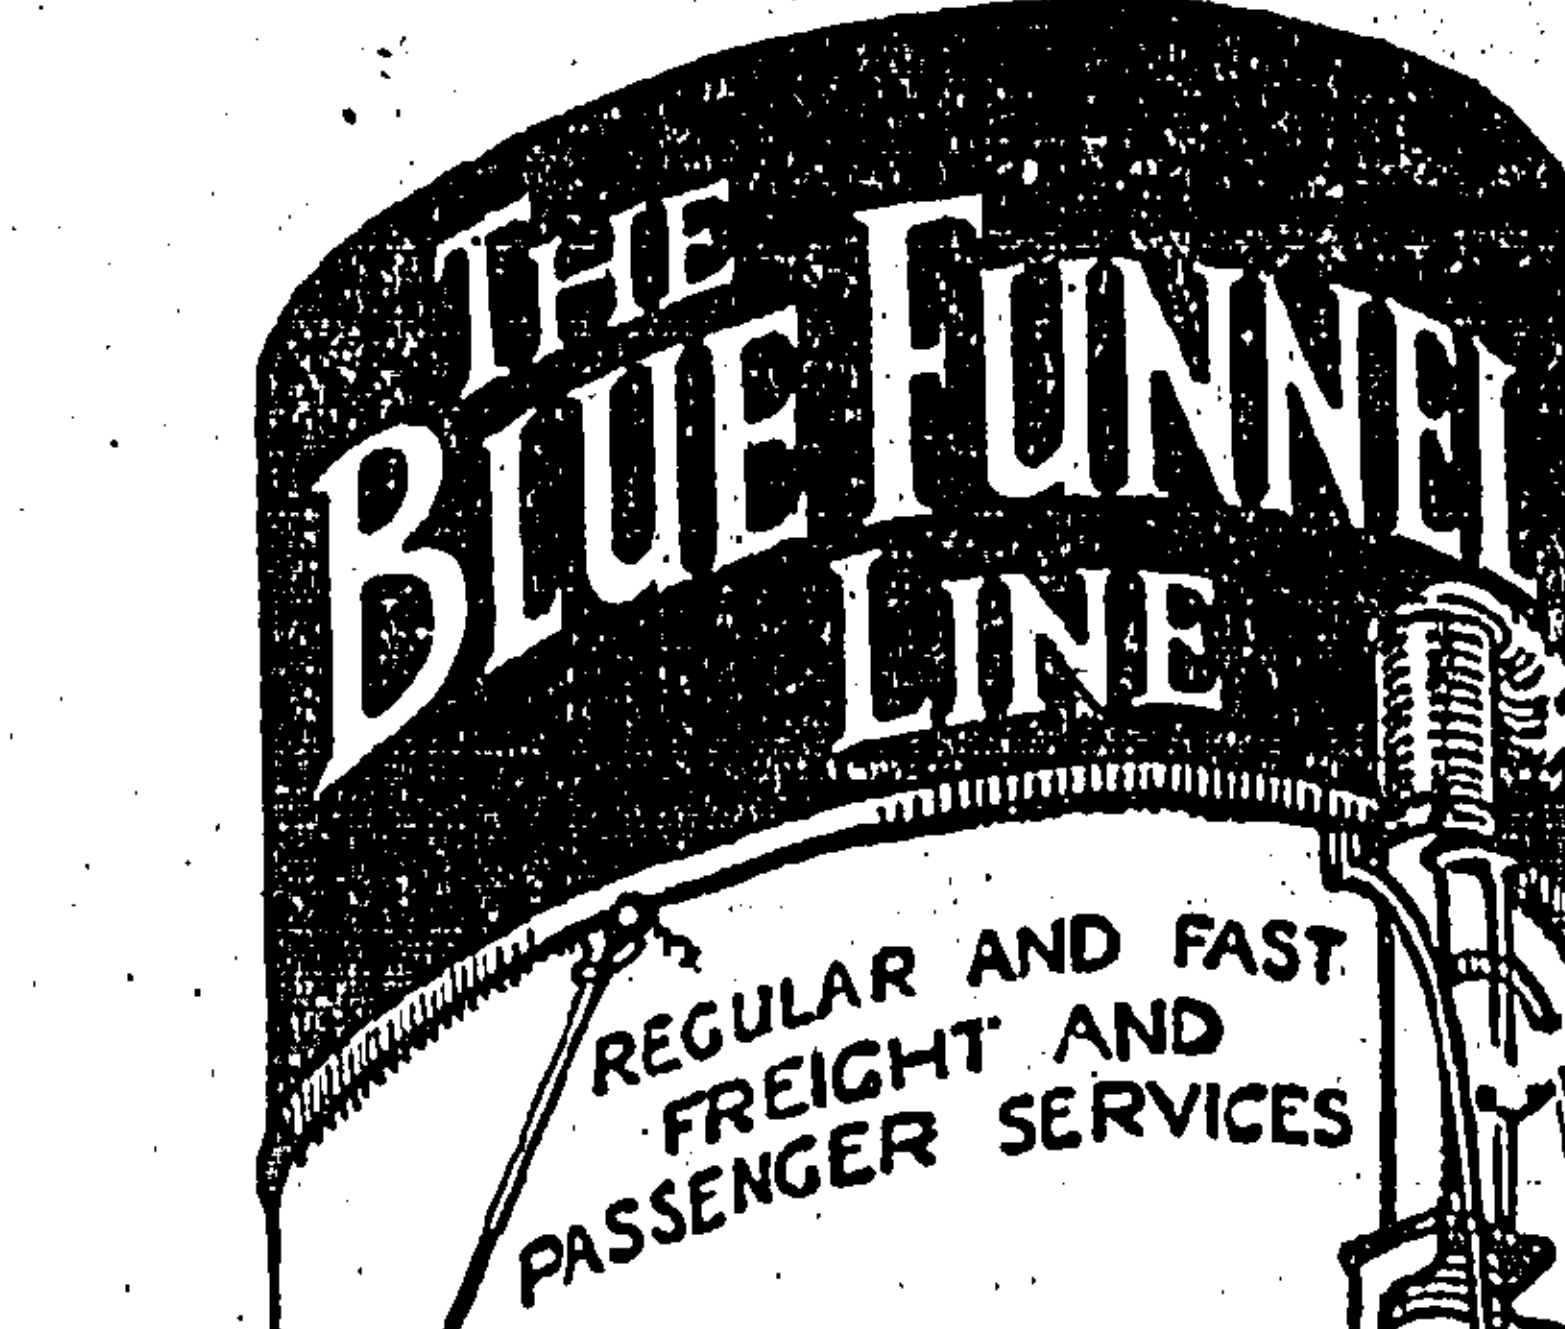

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob" (Psalms 114:7).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you" (Romans 8:5-9).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Matter is not the vestibule of Spirit. Jesus reasoned on this subject practically, and controlled sickness, sin, and death on the basis of his spirituality. Understanding the nothingness of material things, he spoke of the flesh and Spirit as the two opposites,—an error and Truth, not contributing in any way to each other's happiness and existence. Jesus knew, 'It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing' (1, 360).

MORE SNATCHING INCIDENTS

TWO MEN SENT TO PRISON

While Mrs. E. Draper, of 27 Lock Road, was looking into a shop window in Queen's Road Central on Saturday afternoon, her handbag, containing seven dollars, was snatched from under her arm. She turned round and saw the thief running away with the bag in his hand. A district watchman arrested him.

Brought before Mr. Macfadyen the Central Police Court this morning, the man, Chan Cheung-heung, aged 21, unemployed, denied stealing the handbag.

After evidence was heard, his Worship convicted and passed sentence of six months' hard labour.

In another instance of snatching, the complainant was Mrs. Lina da Costa-Lima, living at room No. 406 Hongkong Hotel. While walking with her husband and some friends in Queen's Road Central near the market, a Chinese, dressed in black clothing, came up and snatched her bag from under her left arm.

The alleged thief was later arrested in Connought Road Central by a Chinese Revenue Officer, who, on searching him, found the handbag. The officer had suspected him of having some dutiable tobacco or opium.

The case was heard by Mr. Macfadyen, who, after listening to the evidence, decided that there was insufficient to convict and discharged the defendant, Chan Lan-kong.

Detective-Sergeant Gowans, who prosecuted, stated that the complainant could not say whether the defendant was the man who snatched the bag. Defendant stated that he picked up the bag.

ATTEMPT FAILS.

Caught after attempting to snatch a purse from Miss E. Best, of 21, Soares Avenue, at Waterloo Road, a 25-year-old unemployed man, Cheng Yung-chun, was sentenced to three months' hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Detective-Sergeant Franklin, stated that on September 22, defendant attempted to snatch a purse from complainant, when she was walking along Waterloo Road near Nathan Road, but failed, as

LEGISLATION SOUGHT

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Sept. 23.

As a result of the disclosures of the Senate Committee investigating the munitions contracts of American firms during the past few years, Senator Nye, Chairman of the Inquiry, to-day declared that he was preparing to urge Congress to strengthen by legislation the export laws of the country that they might prevent violation of arms embargoes in future.

It is expected that officials of the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation will testify at the continued hearings of the Inquiry during December.

The Committee adjourned on Friday last until late November. Senator Nye believes that at the renewed hearing even more sensational disclosures will be made of the efforts of arms manufacturers to spread their businesses, even at the cost of causing panic and a dangerous armaments race.

complainant had the purse gripped under her arm and had hold of the handle. Complainant immediately shouted and defendant was caught by a taxi-driver who happened to be near. The purse contained $8, a bunch of keys and miscellaneous papers.

GARRISON DANCE

WELFARE FUND EVENT

Mrs. Borrett, wife of H.E. the G.O.C. Major General O. C. Borrett, and President of the Garrison Welfare Council, attended the third dance of the season organised by the Garrison Entertainment Committee in the Garrison Lecture Hall on Friday in aid of military charities.

Mrs. Borrett was accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Williams, Mrs. M. J. Williamson, Mrs. L. Anderson, members of the Council, and Lieut. H. Drury, secretary and treasurer. Others present included Lieut. and Mrs. Winton, Lieut. Ervine Andrews, and Lieut. J. Abbott, A.D.C. to the G.O.C.

Music was supplied by the dance band of the East Lancashire Regiment, and a group photograph was taken.

In a brief speech, Mrs. Borrett thanked the dancers for their continued support of the efforts to increase Welfare Funds and pointed out that a number of deserving cases had already been helped. She also thanked the Committee for their efforts, and the various bands for providing the delightful programmes of music.

For the dance on Friday next, the "Blue Rhythm Dance Band" has been specially engaged and another enjoyable evening is ensured. Admission will be $1.50 for gentlemen, ladies being admitted by courtesy. Refreshments will be provided free.

LADY'S HANDBAG SNATCHER

TREGUNTER PATH INCIDENT

Mrs. Seldon, living at the Young Women's Christian Association, was the victim of a snatcher yesterday whilst she was in Tregunter Path.

A handbag containing $18, a pair of spectacles and odds and ends was snatched from her by a Chinese boy, who had approached her from behind, unobserved.

The culprit escaped. Mrs. Seldon, in a report to the police, says he is aged about 14 or 15 years.

LEAGUE FIGHT AGAINST DRUGS AND VICE

Geneva, Sept. 23.

In the League Assembly the Fifth Committee to-day resolved to favour an international conference in the Orient, under League of Nations auspices, to deal with measures to prevent the traffic in women and children.

Mr. Victor Hoo, China's delegate on the committee, defended the Chinese attitude towards the drug traffic. He argued that large quantities of cocaine of European manufacture had been seized in Chinese territory. This, he contended, gave China grounds for complaint against Europe.

Further, Mr. Hoo alluded to the strict measures being taken by China to restrict the growth of poppy in the country.—Reuter.

Two more opium addicts who could not get rid of their opium habit after a given period as required by the recently promulgated anti-opium law, paid the supreme penalty in Peking on Friday, says the Central News Agency. Three others found guilty of trafficking in opium were executed on Saturday.
